After growing up in Poplarville, Oscar B. Ladner was ready, at age 18, to do his part to rid the world of tyranny. It was 1944 and WW II was raging across much of the world. His faith in God and country already firmly in place, he was ready to do what he had been taught to do all his life, his part in a situation that needed taking care of, the war. And his choice was to be an infantryman in the U.S. Army.

Warrants issued for policemen in bar fight

Attorney for officers says charges are groundless

BY GEOFF BELCHER
News Editor

Arrest warrants have been issued for two area police officers stemming from a Bay St. Louis bar brawl last weekend. Gulfport attorney James Bailey Halliday said yesterday that he's certain the evidence will prove his clients, Bay St. Louis police officer Ian Estorffe and Waveland police officer Brent Anderson, are innocent of the simple assault charges against them.

Josh and Greg Ellis last week filed affidavits in Hancock County Justice Court against the two officers, claiming they were assaulted.

Some losing properties due to delinquent taxes

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

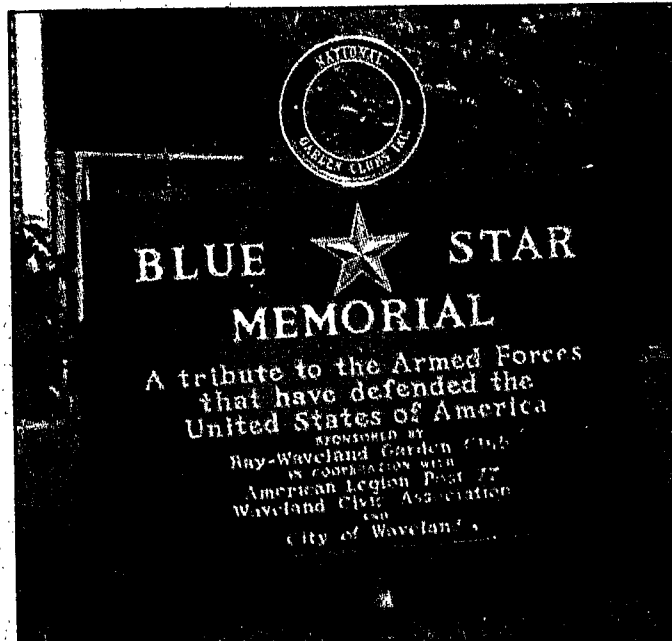

A few people in the county have recently been surprised to find that their property has been sold for delinquent taxes. Most were unaware that they owed anything at all and Chancery Clerk Tim Kellar said there may still be people in danger of having their property sold for back taxes they are unaware of owing.

Kellar's office handles the collection of delinquent taxes and would be the place to call if there are any questions, he said.

Years back, tax statements were sent separately from the county, the two cities, the Bay Waveland School District and the Picayune School District, said Kellar.

Police -- warrants incident occurred last Saturday at Dan B's on Beach Blvd. when Estorffe and Josh Ellis got into an altercation. And all the parties agree that Estorffe, working on behalf of the Bay-Waveland Narcotics Task Force, had arrested Ellis on a felony drug-related charge a few weeks earlier.

But that's where the agreement ends.

In a motion filed with Judge Ricky Adam on Thursday to stay the arrest warrant against Estorffe, Halliday said "Estorffe was in Dan B's Lounge with other off-duty law enforcement officers when Ellis approached him and initiated a verbal confrontation. Ellis, obviously intoxicated, began to berate and threaten Officer Estorffe ... concerning Officer Estorffe's continuing investigation of him."

Halliday's motion states that Ellis continued to berate and curse at Estorffe until "patrons and/or management of the bar physically removed" him. Then later, when Estorffe tried to leave the place, "Ellis suddenly, without warning, confronted him in the hall and attempted to assault" him.

When Anderson jumped in to stop the fight, Halliday said, Greg Ellis assaulted him by striking him in the head with a beer bottle.

After on-duty Bay St. Louis police officers showed up, they "observed (Josh) Ellis partially clothed and acting in a loud and belligerent manner," Halliday said. Ellis was arrested at the scene and taken to the Hancock County Justice Facility on a public drunk charge.

Ellis' family members, however, said last week that Estorffe actually initiated the confrontation by starting a fight with Josh Ellis, and that when Greg Ellis jumped into the fray to help his cousin, Anderson began beating him and "throw him down and stomped his face into the ground."

They say both Ellises suffered serious injuries, including a broken jaw, broken ribs and a head wound that required several stitches; that the first punch thrown in the melee was one to the back of Josh Ellis's head as he was leaving the establishment; that police officers then "piled on top" of him; and that Greg Ellis never hit Anderson with a beer bottle.

Halliday, who was retained to represent the two officers by the Southern States Police Benevolent Association (PBA), said Saturday that the whole incident actually stems from the fact that Estorffe arrested Josh Ellis, and that's why "Ellis was taunting him."

Halliday said the arrest warrants should never have been issued in the first place, since Gov. Ronnie Musgrove signed into law last July legislation that protects public servants such as law enforcement officers and teachers from the threat of an arrest warrant "concerning any crimes alleged to have occurred in the performance of official duties."

In fact, Halliday said, "an arrest warrant cannot be (properly) issued against them without a probable cause hearing in circuit court."

So far, no formal hearing has been scheduled in the matter, either in circuit or justice court.

Local law enforcement officer attends 'Sobriety Trained Officers' course

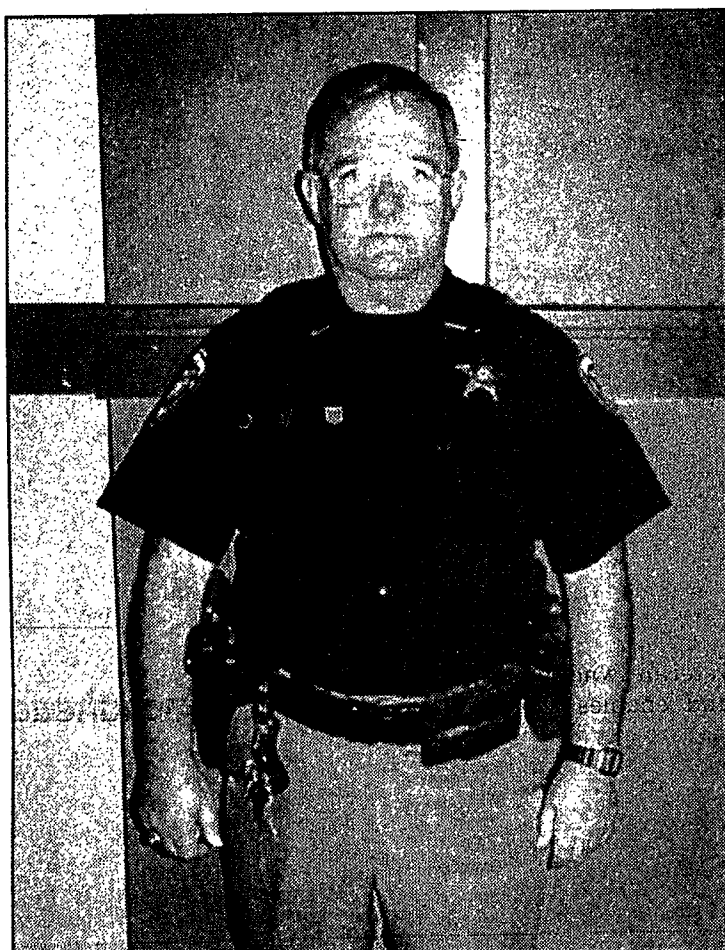

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Ray A. Billeaud, Jr., with the Hancock County Sheriff's Office recently completed a Verbal Judo school at the Sobriety Trained Officers Representing Mississippi's (S.T.O.R.M.) Annual Spring Conference. Billeaud will bring his educational training in Verbal Judo to his position at the Hancock County Sheriff's Office and also to his fellow S.T.O.R.M. members.

The conference was held at the Grand Convention Center in Tunica. Officers all over the state attended the annual spring conference.

The non-profit organization of more than 850 officers was founded in May 1996. S.T.O.R.M.'s mission is to increase cooperation among law enforcement officers who are concerned about combating Mississippi's most serious traffic problems: drunken driving and the low usage rate of safety belts and child passenger safety devices.

The association's main objective is to gain the latest information on techniques of DUI detection and

MS Supreme Court upholds Kingston murder conviction

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A Hancock County antiques dealer's own actions supported her conviction for killing her husband, the Mississippi Supreme Court ruled Thursday.

Patricia A. Kingston was sentenced to life in prison in 2000 for the murder of her husband.

Prosecutors said Kingston shot Herman Cowan, 76, to death in her Bay St. Louis furniture and antique store on Aug. 20, 1998.

Cowan was reported missing by his employer. His decomposed body was found in a trunk in Bayou Lacroix on Feb. 28, 1999. He had been shot once in the back of the head.

Robert Gray Gainey, Kingston's son-in-law, testified against the defendant in her trial. Gainey had pleaded guilty to accessory after the fact to Cowan's murder and was sentenced to three years in prison in 2000.

Gainey testified he helped Kingston put Cowan's body in a trunk and cleaned up blood in her shop. A few days later, he said he and Kingston dumped the trunk in the bayou.

On appeal, Kingston claimed authorities had nothing to link her to the crime except what she called Gainey's unreliable testimony.

Justice James E. Graves, writing Thursday for the unanimous court, said there was more to the prosecutor's case than just Gainey's testimony.

Graves said the court record showed Kingston lied to police about Cowan's whereabouts, never reported her husband as missing, never called police about the investigation and tried to impede the investigation by seeking an injunction against the police department.

And, Graves said that because the jury decided to believe Gainey rather than Kingston was no reason to overturn the murder conviction.

About the Purple Heart Stamp

BY RAY FUNDERBURK

On May 30th, the United States Postal Service will issue a new stamp carrying the image of the Purple Heart medal awarded to those wounded in combat.

A bust of General George Washington is the main feature of the medal that is purple and outlined in gold. George Washington's bust is appropriate because it was Washington who ordered the first medal be created in 1782 to award to his men for gallant service. Lost or misfiled for almost 150 years among War Department records in Washington, D.C., the General Order issued by General Washington authorizing the medal came to light as historians searched through records. The War Department announced the new award on February 22, 1932.

To date, there are in excess of 500,000 recipients of the Purple Heart. Many of those are multiple recipients, having been wounded in combat two or more times.

The Purple Heart is the oldest military decoration in the world still in present use.

Intrinsically, the Purple Heart is the world's costliest military decoration.

Nineteen separate operations are required to make it from a rough heart stamped from bronze to the finished medal, plated with gold and enameled in various colors, suspended from a purple and white ribbon.

To be awarded the Purple Heart, one must be wounded by an instrument of war in the hands of the enemy. It is also awarded posthumously to the next of kin of those killed in combat.

An organization known as the Military Order of the Purple Heart (MOPH) was created in 1932 for the protection and mutual interest of all who have received the decoration. Composed exclusively of Purple Heart recipients, it is the only 'combat' veterans organization in existence.

The MOPH uses funds derived from sale of its official flower, the Purple Heart Viola, to provide welfare and service work to veterans. The Viola is assembled by disabled and needy veterans who have little or no other means of financial support. The Viola serves two purposes, it helps the veteran who assembles it and enables the organization to service hospitalized needy veterans and their families.

Taxes -- delinquent

pay taxes, he said, but some ten or more years back then tax assessor Eddie Murtagh changed this practice so that people could pay all their taxes in one place at the county office.

Delinquent taxes were another matter however and the separate districts were still in charge of collecting their own back taxes. About three or four years ago it was decided that Kellar's office would collect all delinquent taxes in the county. Apparently somewhere in the change over of the massive amount of records, notices to many individuals got lost in the shuffle. The result was that some property got sold for delinquent taxes.

Kellar said records should be very accurate now, but stressed that if someone is dealing with this problem or worried about whether they owe back taxes, they should call the office at 467-5404. The office will work to try to straighten out the problem, he said.

In other business:

• The county has finally been awarded a $250,000 Courthouse Historic Preservation Grant. The county match for the grant is $62,500 but officials hope to be able to make the match with funds they have already spent in current restoration efforts. The grant obligates the county to commit to the maintenance and care of the century old building for at least 25 years. Even if another courthouse were built, the old courthouse would have to remain in use as a public building. Kellar said current renovations are scheduled to be finished about mid August.

Traffic stop leads to drug charges against Pass, Waveland men

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
 Publisher Emeritus

A Pass Christian man and a Waveland resident were charged with possession of a controlled substance following a routine traffic stop in Waveland on Sunday evening, according to Police Chief Jimmy Varnell.

Varnell said, "Around 10 p.m. Officers Jeremy Skinner and Todd Blake initiated a traffic stop at Waveland Avenue and Highway 90. The vehicle was being operated without headlights."

"David Jenkins of Pass Christian was the vehicle's operator and Waveland resident Robert Collins was a passenger. Officers observed drug paraphernalia in plain view inside the vehicle. The driver refused to give consent for the officers to search the vehicle. A K-9 was called in to assist the officers and the dog alerted for possible narcotics inside the vehicle," Varnell's reports stated.

Varnell continued, "Officers then discovered alleged powdered and crack cocaine inside the vehicle, including miscellaneous paraphernalia, including small torches and pipes."

Jacobson and Collins were taken into custody and both charged with possession of a controlled substance and paraphernalia. Bay-Waveland Narcotics Task Force Agent Ian Estorff is leading the investigation, Varnell said.

American Legion 77 to celebrate Memorial Day

Memorial Day will be celebrated with very special ceremonies on Monday, beginning with a Parade of Colors from American Legion Post 77, Coleman Avenue to the Veterans Memorial on Beach Boulevard in Waveland.

An unveiling of the state's first Blue Star Memorial Marker will be the highlight of the ceremonies at the Veterans Memorial.

The memorial is courtesy of the Bay-Waveland Garden Club and the National Garden Club, Inc.

The 155th Tactical Fighter Wing of the Louisiana National Guard's F-15 Eagles will perform the 'Missing Man' formation at 11 a.m. to begin the activities at 11 a.m. at the Veterans Memorial.

The Waveland Veterans Memorial is a joint effort of American Legion Post 77, the Waveland Civic Association and the City of Waveland.

The Blue Star Memorial Marker is a very prestigious Award and the general public is invited and urged to attend the ceremonies at the Veterans Memorial.

At Post 77's home featured speaker will be General Richard Aveitt, Louisiana National Guard Director of Education. This will take place at Post's Memorial following the Veterans Memorial celebration.

Hopefully there will be a large turnout for the Veterans Memorial activities to remember those who gave their lives for the freedoms and also honor living Veterans.

Congratulations are in order for the members of graduating classes.

This is a special time for you, as those of your who are members of high school graduating classes have spent 13 years or so of school to reach this goal.

If there is any way possible, continue your education, as in today's world the majority of occupations are all very high tech and require special schooling and training.

Many changes have occurred in educational requirements for employment since my high school graduation 50 years ago.

I can still remember my joy and the joy of my classmates that special graduation day.

Cherish your time and accomplishments as a high school graduate. Now make that commitment to reach one more goal by becoming a college graduate.

Your continuing education is something you have to earn, and the rewards will follow you throughout your lifetime.

Regionalism, Not Parochialism

I envision a Mississippi where every county and city has a unique niche in a developing new economy, where every corner of our state is touched by economic growth and some type of new opportunity.

I don't want my grandchildren's Mississippi to be a state with virtually all of its younger working people living in or around Jackson, the Coast, or DeSoto County because they cannot find jobs anywhere in between. To achieve this vision, we may have to put aside our pride or personal goals and join forces with our neighbors in the next town, county or state.

Parochialism hurts Mississippi. All too often we find cities feuding with counties, towns at odds with other towns and regions suspect of other regions.

We cannot continue thinking this way and expect success in the global, 21st century economy. International business leaders from Tokyo, Seattle, Berlin or Hong Kong could care less about whether the Anyville City

Council and Anyburg County Board of Supervisors is right or wrong in the latest local dispute de jour.

The fact is: job creators will come to areas where they won't have to muddle through local turf fights and politics - places where they will be treated well as a constituent of every local jurisdiction that they touch.

They want tax incentives without squabbles tied to them. They want good schools regardless of what local district can provide that education. They want a trained or trainable work force, and they will hope local entities will help provide some training too. They want to deal with public bodies who will work with them regarding future expansion needs. In short, they want to be where they are wanted - places where parochial or personal politics takes a backseat when it is time to look at the larger picture of keeping or creating jobs.

This is why I am glad Alabama Governor Bob Riley has proposed that Mississippi and Alabama jointly promote an industrial park somewhere along our border.

Our states look a lot alike - geographically, politically and economically. In fact

Memorial Day: a day to honor those who died for us

IN CONGRESS By Representative Gene Taylor

In 1971, Congress declared Memorial Day a National Holiday to be celebrated the last Monday in May.

This action made official a tradition that began in 1868 of honoring our nations fallen service men and woman. Since that time right after the Civil War, Americans have been laying wreaths and flowers on the graves of those who died fighting under the Red, White, and Blue.

Many towns and organizations across the country hold special ceremonies in remembrance of loved ones and others who paid the ultimate price while fighting for their country. Memorial Day does more than honor the casualties of war; it serves as a reminder, and helps to educate people as to the sacrifices that were made that allow our country and others to live in freedom.

It is unfortunate that freedom is too often obtained only after war and the loss of so many lives. As we show our sorrow for the loss of our fellow Americans, we can take pride in knowing that their lives helped change the world.

The American Revolution told the world that freedom is inherent to every human and that the rights endowed to us by our creator - Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness - are worth fighting for.

At that time in our history we set forth a new path for humans to tread. Through the sacrifice and death of so many Americans, the United States became the land of individual rights and unlimited opportunity.

In the century after the Revolution, America prospered because it lived by the principles the colonists died for.

In the Civil War, Americans died fighting against each other. After the devastating loss of life and property, the outcome of the war resulted in a united country and the freedom of the slaves. It was after this conflict that many Americans set aside a day throughout the year to remember the men who had fought and died in those bloody battles. Their deaths were a reminder of the horrors of war and the need for the rule of law.

In the past century Americans were called to defend people they had never met in places they had never heard of.

The circumstances that bring a young man from the rural counties of South Mississippi to the battlefields of Europe and Asia are not circumstances he had anything to do with.

But as Americans we understand that a threat to the sovereignty of one

Military Mention

Navy Lt. j. g. Scott J. Esher, son of Kathie A. Esher of Waveland, Miss., recently returned from a 10-month deployment to the Western Pacific and Arabian Gulf while assigned to the guided missile destroyer USS Paul Hamilton, homeported in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Esher was one of more than 10,000 Pacific Fleet Sailors and Marines aboard the ships of the USS Abraham Lincoln Carrier Battle Group and USS Belleau Wood Amphibious Ready Group who participated in Operation Enduring Freedom.

Esher's scheduled six-month deployment began in support of Operations Enduring Freedom and Southern Watch in July 2002. As the battle group neared completion of its deployment in December 2002, the USS Abraham Lincoln Battle Group was recalled to duty in the Arabian Gulf in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Esher's ship is one of the most powerful warships ever put to sea. The computer-based AEGIS weapons system is the heart of the ship's warfighting capability. It centers around a powerful radar that enables the crew to detect, track and fire on more than 100 targets at a time.

Esher is a 1996 graduate of St. Stanislaus High School of Bay St. Louis, Miss. and joined the Navy in May 2000.

Marine Corps Reserve
Pfc. John P. Penzo, a 2002 graduate of St. Stanislaus

High School, Bay St. Louis, Miss., recently completed the Electrical Equipment Repair Specialist Course.

During the classroom instruction and practical application at Marine Corps Engineer School, Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N. C., Penzo received training on the operation, maintenance and repair of field power generating equipment.

Penzo also studied electrical theory, operating principles of alternating and direct current generators and control devices.

Discharged military reservists have 90 days to apply for SBA Economic Injury Loans

Small businesses with essential employees returning from active duty in the armed services still have 90 days to apply for Military Reservist Economic Injury Disaster Loans from the U.S. Small Business Administration.

The filing period ends 90 days after the date the employee or owner is discharged from active duty.

"Americans are grateful for the sacrifices these reservists, some of whom are sole proprietors, have made to support the nation's military effort," said SBA Administrator Hector V. Barreto. "We recognize that long periods of absence for active duty can put an enormous strain on a small business, and these loans can help reservists weather the challenges involved in keeping the business running."

The MREIDL program

provides loans to eligible small businesses to cover operating costs that would have been covered, but cannot be met because an essential employee was called to active duty during a period of military conflict in his or her role as a military reservist.

Small businesses may apply for MREIDLs of up to $1.5 million if they have been financially affected by the loss of a key employee. These working capital loans may be used to pay fixed debts, payroll, accounts payable, and other bills that cannot otherwise be paid. The interest rate on these loans is 4 percent or less, with a maximum term of 30 years.

The SBA determines the amount of economic injury, the term of each loan and the payment amount, based on the borrower's financial circumstances.

large tracts of eastern Mississippi and western Alabama from top to bottom arguably have more in common with each other than with some parts of their respective states.

Tupelo, the Golden Triangle, Meridian, and the Gulf Coast depend heavily on Alabama workers and consumers.

So, I am very hopeful that after competing with Alabama fiercely for economic development projects, that our twin states can now pool our resources and further solidify the mid-South's emergence as a manufacturing stronghold, particularly in terms of automotive jobs.

For instance, many Mississippi and Alabama leaders have talked about the possibility of an emerging "automotive corridor" along Interstate 20 in Central and East Mississippi - anchored by Nissan in Canton and automotive plants by DaimlerChrysler, Honda and Hyundai in Alabama. I have talked with Alabama

Senators Richard Shelby and Jeff Sessions about upgrading highways that traverse our two states, in order to facilitate this regional growth plan.

Many people would like to see U.S. Highway 80 upgraded to interstate standards from Meridian to Montgomery, Alabama, and then connecting to Tupelo and Birmingham with a seamless interstate thoroughfare.

Both of these important transportation projects could make us more competitive for large manufacturing plants, including automobile manufacturing facilities and their suppliers.

Yes, it would be good for our larger more affluent counties like Lee, Lauderdale, Lowndes and Oktibbeha - but just as good for surrounding rural counties like Itawamba, Monroe, Clarke, or Newton.

However, in the final analysis this vision of more widespread progress and regional development is not predicated on what Governors, Congressman and Senators can do - but by what you do in your town working with your neighbor. Success will depend on how much Mississippians are willing to lay personal agendas and political boundaries aside to pursue a common goal.

It means that from Tishomingo County to Jackson County folks will have to forget about the past, put pride aside and work together on a common, regional economic future.

nation and to the freedom of one people is a threat to the way our creator intended for us to live.

No one person should rule a nation. History has shown that dictators will ultimately become obsessed with their power and rule with fear and brutality.

The lives of so many Americans have helped to bring down these fanatical and dangerous regimes, regimes that did not care for the lives of its citizens and saw their deaths as a means to an end.

Imagine Europe under the control of Hitler. Think of the prosperity of South Korea and Japan. Even today, we have seen the work of U.S. forces in Afghanistan and Iraq. In all these places, and more, Americans have died fighting for the freedom of others.

The late Stephen Ambrose, famous historian and resident of South Mississippi, often pointed out that the United States military is the only in history whose presence in a foreign country meant that things there were going to get better. Our men and women in uniform are trained to fight for the purpose of liberation.

Indeed, those who left their lives in fox holes, on battlefields, or in the cold depths of the sea, have done their part in changing the world.

On Memorial Day, let us not just remember that these brave men and women died while fighting for their country.

That can be said about many people throughout the history of the world. Americans are distinguished by their cause. Americans have lost their lives in foreign lands to ensure that the enemies of freedom are defeated so that the talents and aspirations of their fellow citizens, and foreigners alike, will be able to flourish and prosper for the betterment of all.

South Mississippi has always given Memorial Day the extra attention it deserves. I am proud to represent an area that so avidly honors our nation's military.

Recognizing those Americans who died in war helps us better understand the prosperity and freedom we enjoy today.

Carey on Coast offers new licensure programs

William Carey College on the Coast will offer new educational licensure programs beginning this summer in school counseling, school psychology and the gifted, according to college officials.

The school counseling and school psychology programs will be administered as both stand-alone programs for the AA license and also as supplemental endorsements for teachers who already hold an AA license.

The two supplemental endorsements will require 18 to 24 credit hours of classroom work. Classes will be available beginning this summer and will also be offered throughout the year, according to Dr. Carol Jones, associate professor of psychology and counseling.

"The coast community has been requesting these programs for quite some time," said Jones. "We are excited and honored to be able to offer these educational options on the coast."

The gifted program is being offered both as a supplemental endorsement for a teacher's license and as a supplemental endorsement for the AA license.

The additional licensure will require four courses, or 12 credit hours. Two of the courses will be offered this summer and the other two next summer to accommodate teachers' schedules.

"The gifted endorsement is being offered primarily for people who are already teachers," said Dr. Gerald Hasselman, professor of education and director of education on the Gulfport campus. "It offers another set of electives and gives teachers more flexibility in their careers. However, it is also designed for instructors under emergency certification who seek support as they teach in the gifted classroom and for parents, guidance counselors and teacher assistants needing groundwork in gifted education."

What Mississippians should know about mosquito breeding grounds

Mississippians may not be the only ones lying around swimming pools this summer.

According to State Department of Health Medical Entomologist Dr. Jerome Goddard, swimming pools that go unkept can serve as a breeding ground for the state's most unwelcome summer pest - the mosquito.

Goddard said, "If swimming pools and other potential mosquito breeding grounds are well-maintained, then some homeowners will eliminate a place for the biting pests to reproduce."

Health experts suggest that homeowners keep their pools emptied or covered during off-season and full and well-maintained during in-season.

Common breeding sites for mosquitoes vary from artificial containers to storm sewers, catch basins, and poorly drained street gutters or ditches. Homeowners can contribute to mosquito control by simply following these steps:

- Destroy or dispose of tin cans, old tires, and artificial water containers
- Irrigate lawns and gardens carefully, without excess
- Empty plastic wading

pools at least once a week and store indoors when not in use

• Change the water in bird baths and plant pots or drip trays at least once each week

- Store boats covered or upside down, or remove rainwater weekly
- Level the ground around the home, so water can run off and not collect in low spots.

- Remove tree stumps that may hold water
- Stock ornamental ponds with top-feeding minnows

- Drain or fill stagnant pools, puddles, ditches, or swampy places around the home.

- Place tight covers over cisterns, cesspools, septic tanks, fire barrels, rain barrels, and tubs where water is stored

- Keep the margins of small ponds clear of vegetation

- Keep rain gutters unclogged and flat roofs dry
- Mississippians can also reduce mosquito contact by avoiding unnecessary outdoor activity during evening and night time hours, when mosquitoes are most active. If outdoors, one should wear protective clothing such as long pants, long-sleeved shirts, and socks.

Glory -- Ladner

Ladner was at first turned down when he tried to join the service, due to a hernia, but joined later, at 19, after an operation to correct the problem. After basic training in Florida, he sailed out of New York Harbor and on to Europe to join with the 65th Infantry Division of the Third Army.

While there he earned the Bronze Star Medal and the Combat Infantry Badge for his bravery as one of General George Patton's Honor Guard, but it is the stories in between that he tells in his book, A Test of Faith and Courage: Patton's Raiders in World War II.

At 78, Ladner, who now makes his home in Gulfport (although most of his relatives are from Hancock County), spent years in silence until two trips to Europe in the 1990's spurred a flood of memories he just couldn't ignore. It was time to break the silence and four years later, Ladner finished his book.

"Before I looked back on the memories like they were not my own," he said. "I was reluctant to talk about it at all. I didn't know until the book was printed that I had had so many close calls. I thought it was just routine, just the war..."

Ladner's first experience with combat, and with death, was in Saarlautern, Germany. He arrived there by a 40 and 8 train, he said, a car designed to carry 40 men and eight horses in World War I. Saarlautern had been the site of conflict for a long time when his unit arrived, he said, they were just the latest to be sent to hold the line. The city was hard to describe, he said.

"There were no dogs, no cats, no civilians at all just complete devastation, houses destroyed, land mines, and snipers everywhere", Ladner said.

He and four other soldiers found themselves standing alone in a street, the truck that had delivered them sped off to keep from being hit. It was cold. The four had no idea where to go.

"The four of us just stood there where the truck let us out," Ladner said. "Shells were fired and we hit the ground ... after a while a major looked out and said get in here or you'll get us all killed."

"I didn't like that major", said Ladner, I didn't trust him. He told us you've just got to kill them before they kill you as fast as you can if you ever want to get out of this war."

The building the men were holed up in was cold, dust covered, with no glass in the windows. Ladner and his buddy slept on an old mattress they found and covered themselves with another to shield themselves from the constant shelling. One of the first nights they were there they built a fire to stay warm and it was very smoky. The smoke drew even more enemy fire and they quickly put it out, deciding not to tell their superiors.

The first man that Ladner killed was a German scouting out the building where the men were holed up. Ladner spotted the man, who was unaware of Ladner's presence.

"I put a bullet right between his eyes," he said.

Death and incapacitating injury were a part of everyday life as Ladner witnessed the loss of life and limb on a daily basis. In the concentration camps Ladner said he saw dead bodies everywhere, almost all with no clothing, and all just skin and bones.

"I got over the fear," he said "I had faith that my God was going to take care of me. You have to believe in your family, your country, your commanders, your fellow soldiers, and God. The old saying that there are no atheists in a fox hole is true ... there is no one to call on but God."

One night on a patrol where the men went out to check communication lines, and bring back ammunition and supplies, Ladner paired with a buddy, Mark. The patrol ran smack into some German's holed up in a house. They managed to kill the door guard but the men inside began to fire and throw grenades.

"You don't hear it coming; you just find yourself on the ground," said Ladner. "I was fine, but my buddy wouldn't respond. I pulled him to safety but half his head was gone and blood and brains were all over me. Then I must have gone to sleep or passed out from a concussion."

When Ladner came to he knew he had to move but he talked to Mark first, amid the flares and artillery fire all around him.

"I told him I was going to kill the men who had done this to him," said Ladner. "And I told God if you will send me home all in one piece I will continue to fight terrorism and oppression as long as I live."

He crawled a long way on his belly and then kept near the walls. He heard footsteps, the footsteps of a German, who Ladner said were a certain kind of boot, the sound of which was unmistakable.

"I could hear him and I got on one knee and got ready to shoot," he said. "He walked right by with grenades hanging all over him ... I let him go by and I passed out again."

After a while Ladner said he woke up again and decided he better hurry back for a midnight curfew. As he staggered down the street toward his headquarters, a guard called out to him for a password.

"I couldn't remember it," he said. "And I knew it changed at midnight, anyway. They were going to shoot me but an officer who knew me saw me and let me come in."

Later, Ladner would go on across Germany with Patton's Raiders and earn honors as a decorated infantryman, but for now he was still at his first destination, Saarlautern, on the German French border, just weeks into his tour of duty.

He didn't know yet that God would indeed grant him his wish to come home in one piece, at least physically. Ladner said he now knows that he returned with all the classic symptoms of post traumatic stress syndrome. But he has been lucky in his recovery, luckier than many of his comrades.

Ladner now spends his time speaking about his experiences in personal appearances and on the radio. In July he will speak at a Kiwanis club meeting in Bay St. Louis.

With the rest of his time, he likes to sail, cook gourmet meals, photograph life and nature, and hunt deer and turkey.

Plan

refused to approve the plans.

The filtration systems are in use in many public water systems in other states, but apparently none are in use in the state of Mississippi. Because of this, the district would essentially be piloting the system in the state.

Stringent testing and other requirements for piloting the system have basically made it cost-prohibitive and impractical for both the district and its customers. The health department wants the district to take the service off-line for one year to test the system.

On Friday, board members said they are now looking at the possibility of drilling a new well that will provide clear water. They had originally proposed drilling the well, but thought the carbon filter system would provide a less expensive alternative.

In other business:

• Board member Herman Johnson asked the board to consider lowering sewer connection fees by $500 to show a more community oriented attitude. Current fees of $2,640 for new connections are just too high, he said. The rest of the board did not agree with Johnson and did not second his motion.

The board did agree to another motion by Johnson to allow new customers to post a $500 deposit on new hookups, which would allow them to begin construction with needed permits. New customers would agree to pay the remaining $2,140 when the sewer system was actually hooked up for use, later in the construction process.

This would put less of a burden on people trying to build homes, Johnson said, and free up the money to be used in other ways. It would especially help people who are doing the work themselves as many people in the county do, he said. The motion passed unanimously.

Bay St. Louis pool company owners charged in alleged scam

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (AP) — A Pearl River County couple has been arrested for allegedly accepting money to install swimming pools on the Gulf Coast and then not completing the work.

Calvin Travis Carpenter, 64, and his wife, Wendy Desselles Carpenter, 45, are each charged with two counts of embezzlement under contract, Jackson County Sheriff's investigators said.

They are being held at the Jackson County Adult Detention Center on $10,000 bonds.

Since October, at least two Jackson County residents have been cheated out of more than $10,000, authorities said.

Lt. Mick Sears, an investigator for the sheriff's department, said police suspect that others along the Gulf Coast have also been scammed.

Some residents were left with holes in their yards and no pools, Sears said.

"They would start the job, like set up stakes or dig a hole, and wouldn't come back to finish the work under contract between the parties," Sears said.

The Carpenters own Heavenly Pools in Bay St. Louis and operated under the name Tamney's Pools.

Mississippi's lobby law "barely passing"

SHELIA HARDWELL
BYRD
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi gets a passing score for its lobbying law despite low marks in enforcement, public access and individual spending disclosure, according to a new survey.

The Center for Public Integrity last week released its study of lobbying regulations in 50 states. More than half the states received failing grades for the registration and spending disclosure requirements for filings by legislative lobbyists.

The highest score, an 87 out of 100, was given to Washington state. Mississippi scored 65 and ranked 13th.

Lobbyists, people hired to influence lawmakers' decisions or votes on particular bills or causes, were paid $9.7 million in Mississippi last year and $7.8 million in 2001, according to the center.

The study concluded that many state laws did a poor job of letting the public know the details of lobbyists' spending on lawmakers, and what issues were discussed.

David Blount, spokesman for Mississippi Secretary of State Eric Clark, disagreed with the center's assessment on the state's public access.

"Our public access on the information we receive is excellent," Blount said. "Every single report by a lobbyist or group employing a lobbyist is scanned and placed on the Internet for every Mississippian who wants to see it."

Leah Rush, the center's director of state projects, said one drawback to the state's process is that lobbyists don't file their reports electronically.

"If it's a place on the Web where lobbyists can submit their forms electronically, it opens up access for the citizens to get the information," Rush said, adding that

Mississippi doesn't provide the reports immediately after deadlines.

Barbara Powell of Common Cause Mississippi, a nonprofit open-government lobbying group in Jackson, said lobbyists should be required to divulge which legislation they support or oppose.

"It certainly would be something that helps the public understand who is influencing a bill," Powell said.

Blount said it would be difficult to keep track of every bill that lobbyists target.

"I don't see how anybody in the country could possibly do that. Every lobbying group has issues or concerns," Blount said. "There are thousands and thousands of bills that are filed. Most of those bills never make it out of committee."

The state's lobbying law was passed in the 1990s when Dick Molpus was secretary of state. Overall, Rush said Mississippi's lobbying law is relatively strong.

"We're proud of it and it's good for the people of Mississippi," Blount said.

SSC's Willis, Amond & Doty continue their sports on the collegiate level

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

Three St. Stanislaus student-athletes signed National Letters-in-Intent to play their respective sports in college next season. Gabe Willis and Brett Amond both will continue their basketball careers while Peter Doty will line up on the soccer field in 2003-04.

Willis signed with Pearl River Community College and Amond with Loyola University of New Orleans. Doty will head northeast to Boston University on his soccer ride.

Willis, a two-year starting point guard, helped lead the Rocks to consecutive appearances in the state semi-finals of the Class 4A tournament. Willis has been an All-Division performer for the past two years while directing the Rocks' floor game for Coach Jay Ladner.

Ladner commented, "PRCC is getting a steal in Gabe Willis. For two years, he has run the show on the floor for us. He has helped lead this team to consecutive appearances in the Final Four of Class 4A. There are a lot of great things in Gabe's future. He is an outstanding leader both on and off the court."

The 5-6 true point guard did not have eye-popping stats when compared to other guards in Mississippi; however, what he did possess was the natural ability to lead and direct a team. That is a quality that most don't possess. His flawless execution of the Rock offense assisted SSC in achieving consecutive 31-win seasons. Willis stated, "Playing for Coach Jay Ladner has molded me into to more than just a basketball player. He is the full package. Coach Ladner is more than just a basketball coach. He is a father figure, a model for all young men, and a leader. I cannot imagine playing for anyone else. Going to PRCC, I have a chance to play early and make a difference in their team. I am looking forward to the challenge."

PRCC head coach Richard Mathis is a veteran coach in the juco ranks of Mississippi. He commented on Willis, "I wanted Gabe Willis for the Wildcats because first and foremost, he comes from a solid program under Jay Ladner. He comes to the next level with a great knowledge of the game and discipline. Secondly, he is a true point guard and knows how to run a team. And, Gabe Willis is a solid person. Coming from St. Stanislaus, we know that he is ready to take on challenges on and off the court. I am looking forward to working with him."

Willis follows in the footsteps of his older brother, Grady Willis. The older Willis was a star for the Rocks three years ago before departing to Meridian Junior College where he is anticipating a jump to the major college level next season. Gabe's parents are equally proud of Gabe and his pursuit of basketball on the next level. Grady Willis, Sr., stated, "We are simply overwhelmed. The opportunity that Gabe has to play basketball at the next level and receive his education is a testament to his work ethic and fortitude. We are very proud of what he has accomplished."

Amond signed with

Loyola University of New Orleans, and NALA school. Loyola has another Rock-a-chow on the team, Dawson McCall. McCall will be a senior on the squad in 2003-04.

Amond, a 6'8" post player, will look to compete for playing time early as the school will lose their big man after next season. Loyola head coach Jerry Hernandez commented on Amond, "I had the opportunity to see Brett play when he was a freshman. At that time, he was a gangly kid. I came to watch him play this past season and was very impressed with how much he had improved. He does the things we like in players. Brett is an unselfish player, takes charges, and works hard. He comes from an outstanding program on the court and in the classroom at St. Stanislaus. We are very excited about what we see in Brett Amond."

Loyola plays in a league with other schools such as Dillard, Xavier of New Orleans, Southern University of New Orleans, William Carey College, Springhill College, University of Mobile, and Belhaven. Amond is excited about the opportunity that awaits him at Loyola. He stated, "I knew that I wanted the opportunity to play at the next level. I have been very impressed with Loyola University and what they have to offer. I have to work hard but I have the chance to improve my basketball skills. Coach Jay Ladner at SSC has really helped me as a person. He can take someone with very little talent and mold them into a basketball player and a solid citizen."

SSC head coach Jay

Ladner has seen Amond grow from a gangly kid into a player that demands attention while on the court. Ladner recalled, "Brett Amond has improved more than any other player we have had at SSC. I think that as a ninth grader, the furthest thing from anyone's mind was for Brett to play college basketball. To improve the way he has is an incredible tribute to his perseverance."

Peter Doty has accomplished just about everything one can accomplish on a high school soccer field. This past season, Doty led the Rocks to their third state soccer title and first Class 4A championship with a 3-1 win over Pearl River Community College. Along the way, Doty scored 29 goals and led the team in assists with 18. For his career, Doty scored a school-record 111 goals which eclipsed the former record of 100 held by 1996 alum Brad Cannon.

Doty was named state player of the year in Class 4A by the Mississippi Association of Coaches and the overall state soccer player of the year by the Mississippi Sports Hall of Fame. At the end of his junior campaign, he was tabbed an All-American. For all of

Leone, Mallini & Lewis carried the torch for SSC track in '03

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The St. Stanislaus track and field team brought home four medals during the recent state track meet on May 9. The medal coalition was made up of two seniors and a hardened junior. These three student-athletes led the Rocks to one of their most successful seasons in recent years. But, it didn't come without a sacrifice.

Allen Leone, a state qualifier in 2002 in the 3200m run, dropped down to middle distance races to launch a gutsy run to the silver medal at the 2003 state finals in the 800m run.

Leone, a gritty competitor, simply ran out of real estate as he crossed the line in second place. Leone was walking the leader down and recorded a personal best 2:00.08 in his final high school race.

The time also happens to be the best one turned in since legendary SSC runner Brian Brooks heated the track up for the Rocks in the early 1990s.

For Leone's achievement and gutsy run, he has been offered a track scholarship by Mississippi College in Clinton. He is undecided where he will attend school next year.

Leone commented, "I surprised myself this season. I encountered some very tough competition all season long and especially at the state meet. During the season, I trained hard and pushed myself. I feel that I have given it my all in my high school career and I ended it with a tremendous finish."

The other senior medal winner was Frederick Mallini in the shotput. Mallini was a three-sport letter winner this year in football, powerlifting, and track. The consummate student-athlete, Mallini also excelled in the classroom.

His bronze medal in the shotput was the result of a superior work ethic in technique formation and unbroken focus on a goal - a medal. Mallini threw a personal best 50'5" at an earlier meet in the season but did not hit the 50' plateau the rest of the season. But, what he did do was simply outwork the competition in practice and in meets. Easily the smallest competitor in each meet, he outperformed the larger and stronger competition with unparalleled dedication to technique.

Mallini stated, "I remember seeing the members of the soccer team displaying their state championship medals and I knew that I wanted one around my neck. It was a great feeling getting up on the medal stand and having your name and school called out. However, I think the biggest thrill was winning the district title as a team. Nobody picked us to win it. We didn't have the sprinters that the other schools had. But, we did have a cohesive team with a lot of heart. Coach (Steve) Flannery challenged us to shoot for the district title and we came together as a unit and won the challenge. I am going to miss having the opportunity to showcase my skills and what SSC can do. However, I am thrilled to end my high school career the way I did."

Kyle Lewis, the lone underclassman of the medal group, brought home two medals from the state meet. While he is the lone junior with a medal, he is the most seasoned out of the group. Lewis qualified for the 2002 state meet in all three distance events - 800m, 1600m, and 3200m. He accomplished the same feat again in 2003. No runner since Brian Brooks achieved that status and Lewis has one more year of running.

By all accounts, Lewis was a sure bet to come home with a medal and possibly a state title. While the state title didn't occur, he still ran masterful races against some tremendous competition.

Oxford's Cyrus Wakaba swept all three events at the state meet. Once again, a feat not achieved since SSC's Brooks in 1991.

Lewis knew that Wakaba had a strong kick and that he had to try and break him early in the race. However, Wakaba didn't break and he kicked past Lewis in the 3200m. Lewis earned a silver medal in the 3200m with a time of 9:59, a bronze in the 1600m with a 4:32, and a fifth place finish in the 800m with a time of 2:05.

Lewis stated, "I knew that I had to go out and try to break Cyrus (Wakaba) early. He was the major competition in the race. It didn't happen. I will put in some serious miles this summer as I prepare for the cross country and track seasons next year. I have set my sights."

These three thinclads helped SSC to its most productive season since the 1990 season. The Rocks won the district title - the 12th time in the last 14 years. SSC claimed the regional title, their first ever since the state was divided into regions. St. Stanislaus claimed the runner-up spot at South State which was their best finish since they won the title in 1990. And, a seventh place finish in the state meet in 2003.

Head coach Steve

Flannery recalled, "By all accounts this was a tremendous season any way that you look at it. Allen Leone is tremendously talented. His friendly demeanor does not indicate the fiery, competitive spirit inside him. He does not leave anything behind. Allen runs so hard that it usually takes about an hour for him to recover. For most of the season, nobody really pushed him but he just ran hard because he had the desire to do so. He and Fred Mallini will be greatly missed and their personal qualities will never be replaced."

"Fred Mallini simply set the tone for the team in every meet, all year long. He is a great competitor who fought every meet with class. There was no doubt that he was the smallest thrower in each meet. However, his success is a testament to his work ethic, dedication, technique, and heart."

"Kyle Lewis went in with high hopes at the state meet and, in a sense, he didn't achieve what expectations

we set. And, that is a little disappointing. However, if you look at what he did accomplish, it is not disappointing at all. Only a very elite group of athletes qualify for the state meet in all three distance events and this is the second year that he has done that. He still has another year to go. The athletes that edged him out this year were tremendous runners. He gave everything he had in each race. Kyle ran courageous and masterful races. He will be determined next year."

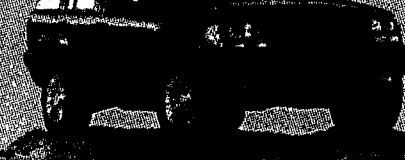

By all accounts, the St. Stanislaus track and field team had a tremendous season. Jake Johnson finished sixth in the pole vault this year. Troy Johnston was a state qualifier in the 3200m run in 2003. Nick Weinmann became all-state in the discus this past season. All three of these athletes will return in 2004. However, it was Leone, Mallini, and Lewis who carried the torch in 2003 for SSC.

Now, who will carry it in 2004?

Hancock Medical Center administrator Hal W. Leftwich, DBA, FACHE, braces for a chocolate cream pie enthusiastically lobbied by pharmacist Bob Wyatt during the hospital's annual picnic. Coast Guard implements Maritime Homeland security measures due to high risk

Due to the recent elevation of the Homeland Security Advisory System Level to high, the Coast Guard has implemented Maritime Homeland Security measures to enhance the protection of cruise ships, passenger vessel terminals, waterfront facilities, and major bridges. The measures consist of two primary components: security zones and increased patrol efforts.

Security zones are in place for two Mississippi River locations within metropolitan New Orleans and Baton Rouge, La.

In New Orleans, all vessels are prohibited from operating between Mile Marker (MM) 88, at the entrance of the Algiers Canal, to MM 103, at the Cargill grain elevator.

In Baton Rouge, all vessels are prohibited from operating from MM 228, at the entrance to the Port Allen route, to MM 234, at the Highway 190 Bridge.

Entry or movement into these zones is prohibited for all vessels (including personal water craft and fishing vessels) unless specifically authorized by the Coast Guard Captain of the Port New Orleans. The two zones are effective from 12 p.m. today until further notice. In New Orleans, mariners are required to contact the Coast Guard Vessel Traffic Service Lower Mississippi River on VHF-FM channel 12, or call (504) 589-2812 to request a transit through the security zone.

In Baton Rouge, mariners are required to contact Coast Guard Marine Safety Unit Baton Rouge on VHF-FM channel 83, or call (225) 298-5400 to request a transit through the security zone.

his accomplishments on the field and in the classroom, Doty has been offered a scholarship by Division I member Boston University.

Doty is the first soccer player from SSC since Konstantin Koloskov in 1995 to make the jump from high school to Division I soccer. SSC head coach Andy Kivlan commented, "Obviously, Peter Doty is a tremendous soccer player and he has been honored by numerous awards."

"Peter has proven that he is one of the best players in this state but he had a tremendous supporting cast. He makes opposing teams rethink their strategies because he demands so much attention."

It will be difficult to replace a player like Peter Doty. The job will be a team effort. He is a hard worker on the field and good student in the classroom."

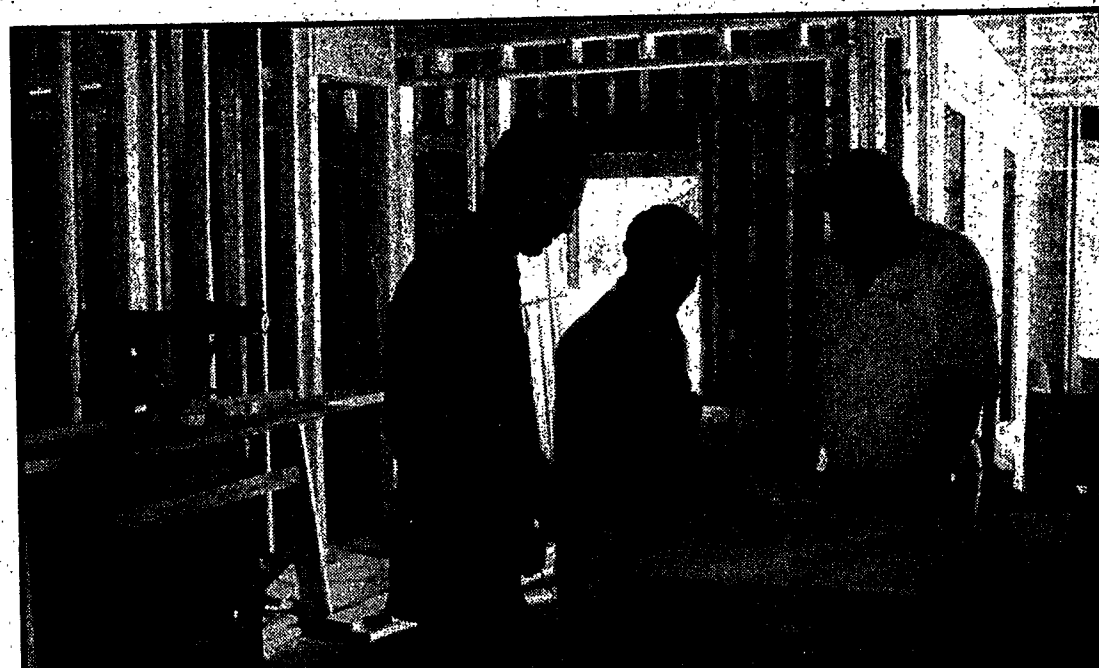

Boston University is located in the hub of the academic world in Boston, Massachusetts. It will provide not only the challenge of Division I soccer but also the challenge of a top academic institution.

Brother Ronald Hingle, S.C., principal of St. Stanislaus, stated, "We are extremely proud of these three student athletes. They represent not only the finest qualities of SSC student athletes but are truly outstanding, young men of character."

'03 All-American Roses Offer Dazzling Variety

BY NORMAN WINTER

Ask gardeners why they start growing roses, and you'll get a range of answers that usually fall into a couple of categories. Many will say that they began a rose garden because the queen of flowers provides such beauty, while others love the fragrance.

This year, gardeners whose choose All-America Rose Selections winners for their garden will discover another wonderful quality of roses: their generosity. The 2003 winners provide an ongoing parade of dazzling color and new blooms, plus some never-before-seen colors and combinations.

For example, the two floribunda winners, Eureka and Hot Cocoa, are bushy plants that produce explosions of color throughout the growing season. Nearly as wide as it is tall, the 3 1/2-foot-tall Eureka features big flowers in an unusual gold shade that some call copper apricot. The clusters are widely spaced, which makes this rose a wonderful anchor for a corner in your garden.

Hot Cocoa, another showy floribunda, is a real showstopper. Gardeners will find their neighbors visiting quite often to watch this unusual chocolate-brown, bicolor rose become the focal point of the garden. If you are looking for a stunning rose in front of your house or to provide a powerful accent when used in combination with pastel flowering plants, get Hot Cocoa at your local garden center.

Cherry Parfait, a flashy grandiflora with white petals edged in red, is the second bicolor, AARS winner this year. This winner also always seems to be in bloom, making it the perfect starter for someone growing roses for the first time.

Like the other 2003 AARS winners, Cherry Parfait works well as the centerpiece of a garden because of its unusual color combination. These AARS winners not only provide the gardeners with constant color, but with plants that are easy to maintain.

Whisper, the only hybrid tea winner this year, stands in utter contrast to the vivid color of the other three roses selected this year. Its creamy white blooms are a breath of fresh air in any garden. Whisper has classic

MOVING ON & LIVING Life

Bay graduate survives cancer, beats the odds

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Like all the other children graduating from Bay High on Thursday evening, Mark Jeffrey Brown's family and friends were proud as he left the stage with his diploma in hand. And like many of his classmates, Mark is a smiling, pleasant young man looking forward to the future. But, Mark and those close to him know that it is a miracle that Mark is here at all.

Three years ago this month, then 15-year-old Mark was diagnosed with hepatocellular carcinoma, a rare malignant liver cancer. Because his stepfather David Page worked with Navy Intelligence, Mark was flown to Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas, for surgery.

Doctors there removed a 5-pound tumor and the whole left side of Mark's liver. He wasn't expected to live.

"The doctors told us I had maybe six months to live with my treatments," said Mark on Wednesday.

But Mark did live, as a matter of fact he thrived, going from a low of 112 pounds during the worst of the illness to a whopping 250 pounds today. He says he owes his survival to supportive family, friends, and God, but mostly to his sheer will to live.

"The hardest days were the ones when I was really sick, throwing up and unable to get out of bed," said Mark. "But I wasn't really scared; I knew I would get through it and I just had that attitude. Family and prayer kept my mind on the right path."

Mark may have been confident, but not everyone shared his resolve. In November 2000, about five months after his diagnosis, the Make a Wish Foundation paid Mark a visit to give him what was basically seen as a "last wish," a computer system he had requested. The Foundation grants wishes to dying children. He was thin and he was bald from his cancer treatment.

"After the Make a Wish visit I had two or three more months in my round of treatment," said Mark. "During that time the cancer went into remission and has been in remission ever since."

Mark's hair began to grow and so did he. When doctors gave their OK he returned to school and began living life again, one day at a time. Because he kept up with his school work while he was ill, he was able to graduate with his class this year.

But the illness and ensuing confinement robbed Mark of basically two of his young years. He isn't the least bit bitter about it though. He doesn't have time to waste on feeling bitter. He knows how lucky he is.

"I got my second chance, and I better use it right," he said. "You learn to appreciate the little things, little things that you never noticed before."

Like just opening up the door and going outside whenever you want, something most of us don't think of as a privilege. But Mark does. During his illness he was confined to the indoors much of the time due to his weakened immune system and other problems.

"It seemed like we had to call the doctor just to ask if I could go outside," he said. "Now I can just open the door and go and play and be with my friends. I have a lot of catching up to do, a lot of growing up to do."

Mark plans to live in the dorm in Poplarville while attending classes full time in the fall. Math and science were his best subjects

SURVIVOR-2B

A Wind Too Strong

Mr. La Violette is taking two months off to promote his new book, Sink or be Sunk. In his absence we are publishing a series of his early stories on sailing in the Mississippi Sound. We hope you enjoy them.

PART 2. I HITCH A RIDE HOME

In last week's episode, Ray and I had overturned our catamaran in high winds and rough water. We had trouble getting it upright but finally the sail came out of the water. The hull came back down with a slam and the sails, dripping mud and water shuddered upright. Since its sails were still set and the lines blocked, the Hobie jerked forward and took off on its own. The good thing was it was headed back to the beach. The bad thing was that I wasn't aboard. Ray had hung on, but the hard slam of the hull when it came down had knocked me loose. I watched as the Hobie raced away from me toward the shore. I started swimming. The shoreline was just a strip in my vision. It was going to be a long swim. A long, long swim.

I figured that with the way the current was going and the speed I was swimming, that I would end up at the beach at Bayou Caddy. That meant that after the long swim when I finally got ashore, I would still have a long hike to get back to our beach. But first, I thought miserably, I have to get ashore.

I hadn't been swimming very long when I heard an air horn. I looked around and saw a shrimp boat headed my way. I dog paddled and waited. If I had been a dog, my tail would have wagged.

When it came up on me, I saw the shrimp boat had a crew of three, two men and a woman. They brought the boat into the wind and threw a line from the bow. I grabbed it and started to climb up. The boat heeled over with a wave and I found myself hanging away from the hull, and as it heeled the other way with the wave I was slammed hard against the hull. When this happened, the band of my brand new expensive Seiko wristwatch, a birthday present from Stella, parted and the watch fell toward the water.

I had no choice. If I lived, I would have to go home and tell Stella that I had lost my watch. I couldn't do that. I let go of the rope and fell clutching after the watch. I saw it glitter in the air for a moment ahead of me, then hit the water. I followed into the water and down finally touching the bottom.

It was mucky, it was dark.

I felt around, no watch. I felt some more, no watch. This is impossible, I

D'head AARP spreads word about safety

Neal Hall, AARP Member; Lt. Billared, Hancock Co. Sheriff's Office; Dr. Cherle Ramseyer, Principal; Mary Lou Munt, AARP President.

Diamondhead AARP Chapter 4228 is spearheading a Safety Awareness Program during the month of May to emphasize safety on the roads and streets of Diamondhead.

This project coincides with National Bicycle Safety month and Community Service month. The Hancock County Sheriff's office and the P.O.A. Security will serve as advisors and facilitators.

AARP members and the Sheriff's Department representatives recently presented safety educational programs at East Hancock Elementary School and Hancock Middle School to 586 students.

Educational awareness flyers have been distributed through local churches and at the Diamondhead entrance gate, reaching more than 1,200 homes. There will be follow up activities throughout May, and local observations during summer and fall.

The main focus of this project is to renew our awareness of the rules of the road in order to continue to provide safe living for our residents and guests. Your participation will help Diamondhead continue to be a great place to live.

Look for the personal conduct of the teacher. Is the teacher someone you can trust to set a good example for your child? Does she smoke? Does she eat during class? Does she take phone calls during classes and leave the class unattended? If so, this should not be the studio you select. Look at the class structure. Does the teacher offer competitive pricing and hours that are flexible and convenient to your schedule? Does the teacher require more than one class? Are classes too full to facilitate learning? Are classes age and level appropriate or are all students of a certain age range simply put together regardless of level?

Remember heroes of war against cancer

Memorial Day is a time when we pause to remember our loved ones, neighbors and fellow citizens who have fought and died for our country and our freedom. This Memorial Day, the American Cancer Society offers an opportunity to remember the heroes of a different kind of war -- our loved ones who bravely battled cancer.

The American Cancer Society Tribute Gift Program

enables you to honor loved ones who have passed away while offering hope and support to those still fighting for a cancer cure.

"This year nearly 500,000 lives will be lost to cancer. But your tribute gift can make a difference," said Brian Lake, executive director of the Gulf Coast office of the American Cancer Society.

"By giving a tribute gift, you are contributing to the American Cancer Society's mission of eliminating cancer through research, education, advocacy and patient support."

Tribute gift donations are accepted in any amount. Upon receipt of the donation, the American Cancer Society sends a card to the family of the person being remembered acknowledging the donation.

For details, call the American Cancer Society at 800-ACS-2345 or visit www.cancer.org.

The American Cancer Society is the nationwide, community-based, voluntary health organization dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by preventing cancer, saving lives and diminishing suffering from cancer, through research, education, advocacy and service.

thought. It had to be down here, somewhere. The thing was, it was so dark and muddy and murky, I couldn't even tell where the bottom began. I had to find that watch!

But I couldn't and I didn't. And it slowly dawned on me that I was going to have to figure an excuse to tell Stella and come up to the surface for air. And I had better do the last part soon.

When I popped to the surface, I was at the stern of the boat. I heard a voice frantically yelling.

"He didn't come up! He didn't come up!"

I yelled. The people in the boat came running back to the stern. One of the men reached over as the boat dipped in a swell. I grabbed his arm and he heaved as the boat twisted back out of the trough and I was thrown on the deck.

"God," he said. "We thought we lost you." I looked at him and nodded agreeably.

The three were obviously happy that they hadn't lost me and offered to turn about and take me back toward the Nicholson Avenue beach.

I said thanks and just sat there pooped. The woman fussed around me as one of the men brought over a towel for her to dry me with and the other man started up the engine and turned the boat about.

I guess I had given them a bad scare. The woman kept talking. She told me that they had just bought the boat in Biloxi and were ferrying it to Bayou Caddy when they saw me get dumped off the Hobie and then try to swim back by myself.

"That would have been a long swim," said one of the men. I agreed. The boat puttered and puttered and I leaned back in the warm sun and relaxed. Soon the Nicholson Avenue pier and beach came in sight.

"We're about as close in as we can get. You'll have to swim the rest of the way."

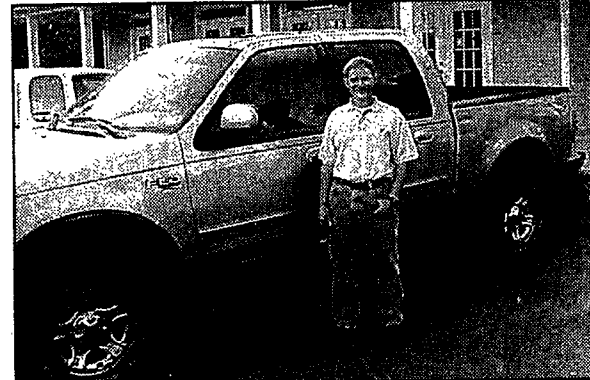

"Okay, this will be fine," I said. "Thanks for the ride. I really appreciate it."

I dove over the side and swam the now short distance to the beach. When I got there, I waved to the shrimp boat going away toward Bayou Caddy. The three waved back. This was in school. He says he wants to do something in the computer field. He hopes to go on to finish his education at Virginia Tech.

Family members say his real love is music. Rap and hip-hop are his favorites, he says. He plays several instruments -- clarinet, trumpet, tuba, and bass drum. Like many young men he loves to play basketball.

But the years of his illness and recovery kept him from doing much joining and so there was no band, no athletic teams, none of the usual activities a teen takes for granted.

Like Mark said, he has a lot of catching up to do on being young and carefree. He says he is looking forward to the freedom that college will bring.

To other children who may be facing a fight for their lives he offers this advice.

"Keep a positive attitude and don't think of yourself as sick," said Mark. "Do as much as you possibly can to stay strong and then you will have more strength to fight."

bud form and dark-green foliage to serve as a dramatic background for this classic rose.

Whisper works well as an entry plant because it is very showy with a bevy of blooms. With excellent repeat characteristics, this AARS winner will bloom well into the fall season.

Roses need five to six hours of direct sun each day. Morning sun is essential, but afternoon shade is tolerated.

Good air movement helps the dew and rain dry quickly, discouraging disease. Plant on raised beds with plenty of organic matter incorporated. Avoid planting under eaves or gutters where bushes can be damaged by falling water.

Plant your roses where they are easy for you to watch and enjoy. A convenient location also will help you notice any insect or disease problems. Water with soaker-hoses instead of overhead sprinklers to greatly enhance your success.

Feed your roses every four to six weeks with light applications of a slow-released fertilizer. My favorite is a 12-6-6 with minor nutrients; others like those with a 1-2-1 ratio.

Gardeners, whether beginners or veterans, will find Eureka, Hot Cocoa, Cherry Parfait and Whisper disease resistant, and a good bet for any garden.

Coast Chorale honors 10-year members at annual fund-raiser

Seven singers awarded special pins at dinner concert

Seven members of the Coast Chorale were honored at the Chorale's annual dinner concert fund-raiser on Saturday evening, April 26.

The event was held at the Pass Christian Yacht Club.

Pearl Bouis, George Dunn, Connie Geisenderfer, Joy Mehrtens, Dr. Pete Smith, John Thompson, and Jackie Williams were awarded a special pin for 10 continuous years of membership.

They helped form the Bay Area Chorale in 1993. Its name was changed to Coast Chorale in the mid 1990s.

Mehrtens has been musical director of the group the entire time.

The pins were presented at the banquet by Coast Chorale president Eric Meindl on behalf of its Board of Directors.

In his comments, Meindl remarked, "This is a great example of outstanding commitment. This is a volunteer community chorus. It took special dedication and sometimes even a little luck to stick with it for an entire decade."

The award pin is an original creation of Ellis Anderson of Quarter Moon Galleries in Bay St. Louis. She worked from design ideas that were submitted by Chorale members and students of Suzanne Cox, assistant professor of graphic design at William Carey College. The design is based on the G-cleft musical symbol with a small amber stone at the bottom.

The Chorale performed last February at New York's Carnegie Hall with about two dozen other choruses from the United States and Canada.

In addition to its patrons and fund raising activities, Coast Chorale is supported by a project grant from the Mississippi Arts Commission in 2002-2003.

Casino Magic Bay St. Louis will present a double dip of Four Tops

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Four Tops will bring their special brand of harmonizing to Casino Magic Bay St. Louis Friday & Saturday, June 6 & 7 at 9 p.m. each evening. Tickets are $14.95, $19.95, and $24.95 and are available at the Casino Magic Box Office, by calling 1-800-5-MAGIC-5, or at any Ticketmaster location.

The Four Tops have been marveling audiences with their unique blend of pure vocal power and unparalleled harmonies since 1954. They have brought to the American people and the world a sound so singular that it is woven into the fabric of American pop music.

Hits like "Baby, I Need Your Lovin'," "I Can't Help Myself (Sugar Pie Honey Bunch)" and "Reach Out, I'll Be There" topped the charts and became anthems of a generation. The Tops were a sensation abroad as well. At a time when the U.S. charts were dominated by the Beatles and the Rolling Stones, The Four Tops sat like kings at number one in England. Later came more hits like "Ain't No Woman (Like the One I Got)," "Keeper of The Castle," "Are You Man Enough" and "Am I My Brothers' Keeper?"

In the early 1980's, The Four Tops recorded two albums, showcasing such monster hits as "When She Was My Girl," "Tonight I'm Gonna Love You All Over" and "I Believe In You and Me." Later, they recorded "Indestructible" which garnered rave reviews.

In 1990, The Tops were inducted into the Rock 'n Roll Hall of Fame, and in 1997 were honored with a star on Hollywood Boulevard, adding to their growing list of awards and accolades. Sadly, in June of 1997, one of the Tops, Lawrence Payton, died of liver cancer.

The Four Tops had 44 years together and then there were three. Originally, the three decided to go on and sing and to continue doing what they had started to do years ago - to bring joy to millions through their music. Then along came Theo Peoples (former member of The Temptations) who fit in perfectly, so once again there are Four Tops, still true to the soul, memory and performance of Payton.

Generations can close their eyes, hear a Four Tops tune and it catapults them to a memory.

This group has the distinct pleasure of marking a part of American culture with their music.

Today, The Four Tops are going strong, performing to standing room only crowds all over the world, delighting old and new fans alike.

Their powerful, recognizable sweet harmonies and unforgettable voices have firmly established their status in music history as musical legends!

Don't miss the Four Tops only at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis Friday & Saturday, June 6 & 7. Must be 21 to attend.

Graduating Seniors at OLA make a statement

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The 40 seniors of OLA have had a lot on their minds this last week as they prepared for their first big walk down the aisle to receive their High School diploma. Unlike the seniors at one school recently in the national news, the OLA students ended their year on a high note that speaks well of each student, of the sisters and teachers at OLA and of their parents and community in general.

A check for $1070 dollars was delivered to Hope Haven Children's Shelter offices by Michelle Lady, on behalf of the graduating senior class.

Margie Toups, President of the Board for Hope Haven was moved to tears when she was informed about this wonderful gesture from the young ladies. "These kids could have taken that money and spent it on themselves. They could have all gone out to dinner, gone on a weekend trip ... spent that money in any manner of ways. To think that they have the maturity and character to provide for the unseen children in our community who have been abused and neglected speaks volumes of their character, upbringing and education. I don't know these students by name... but I do know one very important thing." Continued Toups. "They have demonstrated that they have a caring heart and that is what Hope Haven was founded on, a caring heart. God bless them all."

Hope Haven shelter had experienced a significant drop in donations over the last several months due to the economy and has drawn over $22,000 out of their reserve funds to meet current obligations. Recent media coverage in the newspapers and on TV have encouraged community support and, Hope Haven Director reports that over $5,000 in new donations or pledges have been made to the shelter in the ten days following the media coverage. Hope Haven is a United Way Agency and is currently running a "Pennies from Heaven" fundraiser in which people from across the coast are being asked to bring their pennies in to any branch office of the Peoples Bank for the benefit of the shelter.

Beale named a STAR student at Pass High

Nicholas S. Beale has been named as a STAR (Student-Teacher Achievement Recognition) Student for the 2002-2003 school year by the Mississippi Economic Council's M. B. Swayze

Educational Foundation (sponsor of the STAR program). The Pass Christian High School senior was honored during the 13th annual Education Celebration on April 25 at Mississippi College in Clinton. The event was co-sponsored by Entergy. STAR students are selected on the basis of academic excellence. Both ACT scores and scholastic averages are compared to determine the school's STAR student. Each STAR student is asked to designate a STAR teacher, the classroom teacher who has made the greatest contribution to the student's scholastic achievement. Melissa M. Harris was designated STAR Teacher.

The God of History Rules

The French took history into their own hands in 1791 when they revolted against the oppressive system of kings. Thousands of miles to the west, the 500,000 slaves in Saint Domingue (Haiti) seized the occasion of the French Revolution to rise up against the colonists whom they outnumbered 8 to 1.

Reflections on Life

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

After the slaves had destroyed many plantations and towns of their French masters, Toussaint L'Ouverture, a former slave, took over the government and restored order. Napoleon I seized power in France in 1799 and quickly sent an army to restore colonial rule to Haiti. Unfortunately for him, his soldiers, depleted by yellow fever, were crushed by the rebels in 1803.

Enter the Louisiana Purchase. Napoleon had heard that America would likely use his war against Britain as an opportunity to seize the territory of Louisiana. So why not sell it now and use the money to fight the British? With a few tortuous twists in the U.S. Congress and banks in England and Holland, the United States took over Louisiana Dec. 20, 1803.

Driven by such urgency and haste, Napoleon willingly parted with the vast territory of Louisiana for a song and dance, the second-greatest real estate steal in all history. For a piddling $15 million, the United States bought all the 827,987 square miles of prime land of the western Mississippi Valley.

Incredibly, this bargain basement buy at less than three cents per acre included in their entirety the states of Louisiana, Missouri, Arkansas, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and Oklahoma. Additionally, it included most of Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and Minnesota.

It is simply amazing to peer back into history and view the maneuverings of a mighty Napoleon whose agendas turned out to be futile, except that they were stepping stones along the way for the development of our infant New World country which he despised. The rapid rise and success of our young nation had to be one of the bitterest pills he ever swallowed.

"Man proposes; God disposes," one of the all-time most powerful truisms, calls our attention to the God of history who uses ours and the agendas, the foibles, devious maneuvers and sometimes the perfidy of world leaders to chart courses which they did not have in mind, and at times opposed, but which they in effect brought about despite their efforts to the contrary.

We do not like to see ourselves as pawns standing in haphazard spots around the big playing board of history. Of course not. We are, at least in our own minds, people of some importance in the unfolding of history.

But, while we are indeed pieces of history's puzzle, we are not indispensable.

To put it mildly, "The cemeteries of the world are filled with indispensable people," Charles de Gaulle observed. It is the ultimate call to attention that the world goes on, no matter who is buried at any time on any day in any place anywhere on earth. That gets our attention.

No one is indispensable, not even the so-called greatest, except perhaps in her/his own mind.

This clarion call to attention notwithstanding, most people in or out of power do not get the message. They go on blithely pursuing their selfish agendas, doing their crooked business, and prosecuting their bloody wars, blind to the evidence that all their efforts are affirming the God of history.

As Louisiana prepares to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the Louisiana Purchase, we can all collectively as a nation give thanks to God, marveling that a war in a foreign land far across the ocean backfired against the insane, greedy ambitions of a quirky, egotistical dictator.

Instead, Napoleon's wars, twistings and turnings earned only the astounding expansion of America.

The Louisiana Purchase was rendered all the more difficult and unlikely because of its yo-yo ownership by the French, then by the Spanish, then by the French again. If there was a manifest destiny of the United States, surely it seemed hidden by the political and military maneuvers of the powerful, well-established nations of France and Spain.

Yet, we should have known all along that only a divine plan could somehow chisel and forge a new country out of an uncharted wilderness which harbored hitherto unknown diseases such as yellow fever, and which tested to its limits the faith of tentative settlers setting their course in life.

At 587,878 square miles, almost 200,000 square miles smaller than the Louisiana territory, Alaska eclipsed the Louisiana Purchase with its cheaper price of $7,200,000, or two cents per acre, on March 30, 1867.

Similarly, it was a weakened Russia that decided to sell after the Crimean War in 1856.

As the other humpty-dumpty wars, this fed into the God of history's agenda.

And so it is with us all, willy-nilly. We can make ourselves and our friends miserable by ignoring the Ruler of the universe, attempting to impose our agendas and will on everyone else. Or we can find inner peace and content by admitting that whatever anyone does contributes to the God of history.

The Word for the Week

The traditional view of the Bible

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 308, Sterling, KS 67579

In the span of twenty-five years there have been two terrible riots in Los Angeles.

I heard one talk show host ask the question, "Where did we go wrong?" The answer is that we have turned our backs on the Bible.

For example, we no longer allow the Ten Commandments to be posted in schoolrooms. The Supreme Court declared this public display of the Ten Commandments unconstitutional on Nov. 17, 1980.

The court was deeply concerned that if these plainly religious values were posted in schoolrooms students might be encouraged to follow them. Since then, three generations of high school students and two generations of college students have graduated.

By implication these students were taught that God's absolute moral standards summarized in the Ten Commandments are taboo. And Ted Koppel actually angered people when he said Moses did not come down from the mountain with the Ten Suggestions! Now these three generations of students have entered the mainstream of society.

The 1992 Los Angeles riots, although shorter than the previous riots, were the occasion for more looting, violence, and murder. There is a correlation.

When we turn our backs on the Bible and the standards of God in the Bible, we can expect more violence, more murders, more rapes, and more thefts in our society. The problem is that we no longer believe in absolute truth coming to us from God.

We no longer believe in God who has spoken to us in a book. So we are a society that is adrift. We desperately need to get back to the traditional understanding of the Bible as the Word of God.

Scripture Says . . .

By Ed Young

Babel

And the Lord came down to see the city and the tower, which the children of men built; and the Lord said, Behold, the people we one, and they have all one language; and this they being to do: and now nothing will be withheld from them, which they have imagined to do. Gen. 11: 4, 6

This writer can remember back in the thirties, movie shows had weekly serials. One serial was called "The Adventures of Flash Gordon." The technology in those days wasn't very good; attempting to show a flying rocket ship going into space was all new to the audience.

However, the imagination was there for mankind someday to travel in space. Anything man can imagine he can do.

There is something about having one language that would have accelerated mankind's progress. The fact that these people who lived in the land of Shinar, who built the tower, we call Babel, felt as though they didn't need God.

So God gave them a confusion of different languages and speech. That brought on different thinking which exist today.

Nevertheless we can communicate with our Heavenly Father in prayer. God hears us in the tongue we speak. "By the way, He loves us to talk with Him." Daily!

Hancock High students explore opportunities in hospitality industry

THE SEA COAST ECHO

On April 16 the Hancock Vo-Tech Center's Culinary Arts II and Lodging and Hospitality II students and their instructors, Jeanie Ballard and Lady Bruce, spend the day touring the Beau Rivage Resort. The students, who are preparing for careers in these respective fields, were able to see first hand the various opportunities available to them in the hospitality arena. Beau Rivage Human Resources Director Pam Ladner-Jones and employee Megan Rishel led the students on a comprehensive tour of the facility. In the Employment Center, students learned about the application and interview process and were given tips on dressing for success. Students then visited the banquet kitchen, one of ten kitchens that service the resort, and Chef Demetrio Marquez explained his responsibilities and the duties of his staff in providing food for large group events. They also visited five of the restaurants located in the Beau Rivage.

The tour continued with stops in four different types of hotel rooms ranging from a standard room to a deluxe suite. Other places of interest seen by the students included the uniform center, theater, meeting rooms, hotel lobby, and front desk. The tour concluded with lunch in The Buffet where the students enjoyed a variety of cuisine. This field trip experience, made possible by the Hancock School District's School-to-Careers grant program that encourages career awareness, experience, and exploration, brought classroom instruction to life and gave students a glimpse of the many career opportunities available to them in the hospitality industry.

Like other young girls, eight-year-old Kaitlyn Smith loves to watch television, enjoys being around other kids and relishes her independence.

"Kaitlyn wants to be involved. She wants to do everything herself," said her mom Jennifer Knue. "She's a bright girl."

Kaitlyn suffers from Leigh's Syndrome, a rare neurometabolic disorder characterized by the degeneration of the central nervous system (i.e., brain, spinal cord, and optic nerve).

The symptoms of Leigh's Syndrome usually begin between the ages of three months and two years. Symptoms are associated with progressive neurological deterioration and may include loss of previously acquired motor skills, loss of appetite, vomiting, irritability, and/or seizures.

Because of her condition, Kaitlyn must move around in a wheelchair. That doesn't stop her from cheering on her sisters, 10-year-old Micah and 7-year-old Taylor, at their softball games in Poplarville.

"We go to the games and Kaitlyn sits in my lap and roots them on," said Knue. "She wants to get out there so badly."

Thanks to students in the Instrumentation Technology Department at Pearl River Community College, she may get the chance. Wednesday, those students presented Kaitlyn with a batting machine that will help her be a participant.

All she has to do is step to the plate, press a button to put the bat in motion, striking a softball placed on a batting tee.

Dale Miller, instructor in the Instrumentation Technology Department, made constructing the batting machine a part of his Special Projects class. "All I told them was we needed a bat, with some kind of stand with a button, that would hit a ball," he said. "I then turned it over to them."

Interestingly enough, he divided his class into two groups, with each working on separate projects. When members of the class met Kaitlyn at a recent career fair on the PRCC campus, they all got motivated to help with the batting-machine project.

"I am so proud of what the students have done with this," said Miller. "Sometimes kids will start a project, then stop and you have to jump start them again. Not this project."

Miller says the Instrumentation Technology Department can't take all the credit. The school's welding department helped with the framing and the machine shop built some of the mechanisms that were needed, such as the release pin and a height adjuster for the bat.

"All total we had about 15 kids participate in this project," said Miller. "Originally, seven of them were assigned to it. The rest of them just came on board."

"We did this project for a reason and not just for a grade," said sophomore Scott Thompson of Columbia. "It's something we all wanted to do."

The students even tried to come up with a name for the machine. One suggestion was to call it BOB, for Battery Operated Bat. The class also painted Kaitlyn's name on the machine.

"This will tickle her pink," said Knue. "Now she can go out there and do the same thing that other kids can do. She won't feel like she is an invalid. She can feel good about herself."

"Watching Kaitlyn's reaction to receiving this makes you wonder how anybody can have a bad day," said Charlie Buckley of Bay St. Louis.

Life hasn't been easy for Kaitlyn, Jennifer and Karl Smith's only child. Kaitlyn was born Dec. 23, 1994 at Forrest General Hospital in Hattiesburg. Signs of Leigh's Syndrome showed early when she couldn't keep her formula down.

"She did not grow like other kids," said Jennifer. "We were in and out of the hospital all the time."

The diagnosis came around her second birthday. While in a Jackson hospital, Kaitlyn slipped into a coma that lasted two weeks. Doctors told the family there was no hope.

"My husband and I were sitting next to her bed trying to get up the nerve to tell the doctors to turn the machine off, then all of a sudden she opened her eyes," said Jennifer.

"We started asking her questions and she was responding to us."

When they were ready to go home, doctors told them Kaitlyn would probably not live past 3 years old. "They told us to take her home and enjoy the rest of her life," said Knue. "That was six years ago. She has certainly defied the odds."

Life is still anything but normal for this family.

Jennifer, a 1989 graduate of the PRCC nursing program, is an RN at Ochsner's Hospital in New Orleans. She makes the 70 to 90-minute trip to New Orleans from their Crossroads home between Poplarville and Bogalusa, La., three times a week.

While Jennifer works, a private-duty nurse cares for her daughter. Jennifer's mom, Kaye Olsen, secretary to the Dean of Academic Affairs at PRCC, helps from time to time with baby sitting.

Kaitlyn gets schooled twice a week. She can sit up, and she loves to color and play on the floor. She can talk. Her favorite television show is Golden Girls.

She is not out of the clear. She weighs only 47 pounds and must use a ventilator at night. But thanks to a caring group of students, Kaitlyn's quality of life has improved tremendously.

PRCC Instrumentation Technology students involved in the project included Eric Penton of Carriere, Charlie Buckley of Bay St. Louis, Clint Carroll of Petal, Craig Hinton, Holly Vicknair, Shannon Wilson, Corey Jones and Kevin Stromeyer of Picayune, Eric May, David Johnson and Scott Thompson of Columbia, Brad Hurt of Lumberton and Jason Stevens and Kevin Stevens of Pearl River, La.

PRCC welding students involved in the project included Darrell Ducote of Carriere and Andy Hoffman and Bubba Smith of Oak Grove, as well as machine shop student Chris Ladner of Hancock.

The Project for which such expenditures are made is the same as described hereinabove. The maximum principal amount of debt expected to be issued for the Project is the amount hereinabove set forth.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE GOVERNING BODY, ACTING FOR AND ON BEHALF OF THE CITY, AS FOLLOWS:

People who provide child care in their homes can learn how to improve their business and provide a higher quality environment for the children through a free, educational program in its third year in the state.

including developmentally appropriate teaching methods on various child development topics. Program representatives provide suggestions for health and safety, language development, learning activities and other topics related to child care. Additional technical assistance and the hardware for in-home web-TV training will be provided.

HAPPY MEMORIAL DAY

Take Time Out To Salute Our Heroes

To some, Memorial Day is the unofficial first day of summer, a day off from work or school that is spent barbecuing, at the beach or sleeping in.

Originally, Memorial Day was set aside to honor those killed during the Civil War. Southern states refused to acknowledge the holiday, believing the holiday honored only the northern Union soldiers who fought in the Civil War. After World War I, the holiday recognized Americans who fought in any war, persuading southern states to recognize the holiday. In 1971, Congress declared Memorial Day a national holiday to be observed on the last Monday in May.

This year, take time out to remember American soldiers. Display a flag outside your home or car, attend or participate in a community parade, write letters to those currently serving in the military or pay a special visit to the local cemetery to honor your hometown's heroes.

THIS MEMORIAL DAY, take time out to remember those who fought for freedom.

Checking in with Troy Garity

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Troy Garity took a huge leap of faith when he accepted the movie role of Barry Winchell, a young soldier murdered by his company members for falling in love with a transsexual, but the gamble paid off.

His heartbreaking performance in the fact-based "Soldier's Girl," which premieres Saturday, May 31, on Showtime, recently helped earn the film a standing ovation at the Sundance Film Festival.

"I tend to be a comedic actor, and I have relied on comedy to get me out of uncomfortable situations in my own life," the soft-spoken Garity says of his first dramatic lead. "Barry was a character who didn't do that, didn't hide behind any masks ... It's a very powerful film, and I really enjoyed watching it in a community. There's something important about being in a group that is being made to feel something deeply and passionately.

Correcting a common misconception, the rising young actor explains that he didn't personally choose to adopt "Garity," his paternal grandmother's maiden name, for professional reasons: The name was given to him at birth by his parents, Jane Fonda and Tom Hayden.

"They named me Troy O'Donovan Garity," he explains. "My grandmother had 10 sisters, and they all lost their (maiden) name in marriage, so there were no more Garitys, and my parents gave the name to me also partly in hopes of giving me some degree of anonymity — which has subsequently gone out the window!"

Troy Garity

Like both politically aware parents, Garity also is an activist in his own right, having founded the Peace Process Network, a worldwide coalition to prevent gang violence.

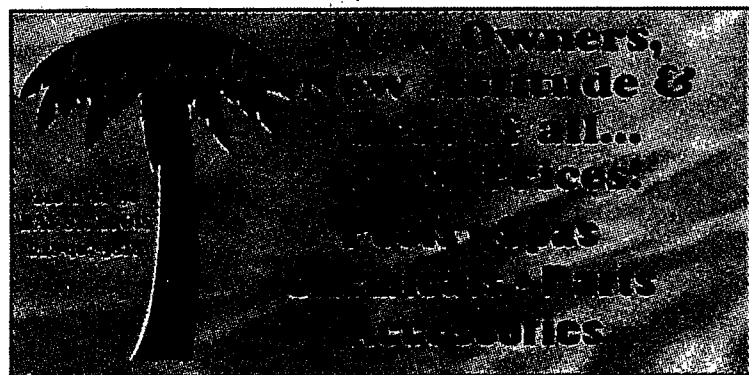

Born: July 7, 1973, in Los Angeles.
Family ties: Mother is actress Jane Fonda; father is California senator Tom Hayden.

Fun facts: Played his father in the 2000 movie satire "Steal This Movie"; his first movie appearance was an uncredited bit part in his mom's "On Golden Pond" (1981).

Professional training: New York's prestigious American Academy of Dramatic Arts, where he became an Academy Repertory Company player.

Film credits: "The Cherokee Kid," "Conspiracy Theory," "Solomon Bernstein's Bathroom," "Inferno," "Bohemians," "Perfume," "Bandits," "Barbershop," "Milwaukee, Minnesota."

Coming up next: Reprises his role as Isaac Rosenberg in "Barbershop 2."

'Soldier's Girl' shoots holes in 'don't ask, don't tell'

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Pfc. Barry Winchell fell in love with the wrong girl. At least, that's what his fellow soldiers in the 101st Airborne infantry thought.

"Soldier's Girl," a recent hit at the Sundance Film Festival, premiering Saturday, May 31, on Showtime, tells the moving story of the ill-fated young Winchell (Troy Garity), who was fatally bludgeoned with a baseball bat while he slept in his barracks during the early morning hours of July 5, 1999.

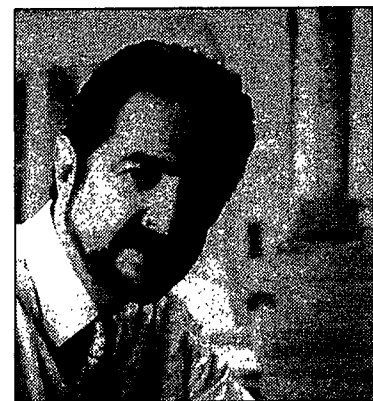

On an earlier outing with his buddies to a Tennessee nightclub, the heterosexual Winchell met and became smitten with Calpernia Adams (Lee Pace), an attractive entertainer with a strange secret: She had been born a man.

Now in the process of becoming a woman (she has female breasts, but has not yet had below-the-waist surgery), Calpernia likewise is attracted to the rough-hewn but sensitive Winchell, and the two embark on a discreet love affair.

Not discreet enough, however, for it attracts the hostility of Justin Fisher (Shawn Hatosy), Winchell's hotheaded and emotionally unstable roommate, who eventually is instrumental in triggering the fatal attack on Winchell.

Directed by Frank Pierson and written by "Philadelphia" screenwriter Ron Nyswaner, "Soldier's Girl" handles potentially dicey material with taste and sensitivity, benefitting from excellent performances by its two main stars.

In his first dramatic lead role, Garity — who is the son of Jane Fonda and California politician Tom Hayden — gives a heartbreaking account of the macho yet tender Winchell, a performance that calls for love scenes with his male co-star.

Williams defends 'Serena Slam' at French Open

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

Perhaps it wasn't the watershed moment everyone thought it was.

When Serena Williams defeated older sister Venus in the French Open last year for her first Grand Slam victory over her sibling, it was said that the triumph represented a psychological hurdle overcome for the then 20-year-old.

But the current holder of all four Grand Slam titles and owner of a recently ended 21-match winning streak is quick to dispel that notion. "I think the hurdle was cleared when I played Venus at the NASDAQ-100 in Miami," says Williams of the March 2002 tournament in which she trounced her sister, 6-2, 6-2, in less than an hour. "So I think, more than anything, that was when that all kind of went away. You know, usually when I play Venus, she just played so well and I just played a little bit better than her, the last couple of times we've been able to play."

Those aforementioned last couple of times include victories in Wimbledon, the U.S. Open and the Australian Open, giving her what many in the tennis world refer to as the "Serena Slam" - winning all four Grand Slam titles in succession, though not in the same calendar year. Four other women in history hold that distinction, the last being Steffi Graf in 1993-94.

This week, the stage is set for Serena to embark on the defense of her Paris championship when she returns to Roland Garros Stadium for the 2003 French Open, which gets under way Monday, May 26. ESPN and ESPN2 televise the bulk of the tournament beginning that day and running through the semifinals on June 6. NBC's coverage begins with early-round action Saturday, May 31, and runs through the men's final on June 8.

But Serena will more than likely do it without the prospect of playing Venus, whose status at press time was unknown due to an abdominal injury she suffered earlier this month at the J&S Cup in Warsaw, Poland.

Nonetheless, Serena is looking forward to getting back to the red-clay surface at Roland Garros. "I love the red clay, actually," she says. "I like it more than any other clay. I like it more than the green clay. I don't know why. But I kind of grew up on the clay, so it kind of fits me well."

Her preference comes as somewhat of a surprise, since the slower clay surface is known to neutralize the power games of players like Serena. "With my game style, you would think I prefer to play on a faster court," Serena says. "But I've always enjoyed Roland Garros. I love the French Open. I don't know. Maybe it's just that special atmosphere."

Or that certain "je ne sais quoi" that Paris is famous for. One thing is clear: Serena isn't feeling any pressure in the City of Lights. "I never feel pressure," she says. "I just go into a Grand Slam saying to myself, 'I just want to win this title. I don't care to defend the title. I want to win Roland Garros. I want to have an opportunity to win again. So I think if you look at it like that, it's much better.'"

So who can beat Serena at Roland Garros this year? Ted Robinson, who fronts NBC's coverage along with John McEnroe and Bud Collins, has a novel answer. "Right now, Serena's the only one that can beat Serena," he says. "She's the only one right now that can beat herself. Any slippage in concentration, in preparation, will be the opening that somebody needs, and there are a handful of players that are capable of doing it in Paris. But I don't believe that it's going to be reliant on their game. It'll be reliant on Serena's game."

Robinson feels that such dominance by the Williams sisters could ultimately prove detrimental to the sport. "Suddenly, we've gone in two or three years from this phenomenon that exploded on the scene and created tremendous interest in the sport to a point now where I think the fear is the interest will wane because they're too good."

Serena Williams (left) says she and sister Venus don't do anything differently the night before a big tournament such as the French Open, airing Monday through Saturday on ESPN, ESPN2 and NBC.

"I said this during Wimbledon last year a couple of times," Robinson continues, "that Jennifer Capriati was probably the most important player in the women's game right now because she was the one player - and may still today be the one player that can play with them. When her game is on, Jennifer can play with Serena and Venus. And the game needs that because you need a rival, and the sisters cannot be rivals. That's what we've learned. They can't be rivals."

Cooper follows florid Oscar role with a stern about-face

By John Crook
© Zap2it

How does an actor follow up an Oscar win for playing one of the wildest eccentrics in recent movie history?

Well, if he's Chris Cooper - recently named best supporting actor for his colorful performance as dentally impaired "orchid thief" John Laroche in "Adaptation" - he does a complete about-face to play a repressed and buttoned-down academic in "My House in Umbria," an HBO drama premiering Sunday, May 25.

Based on William Trevor's novel of the same name, the TV movie stars another Oscar winner, Maggie Smith, as Mrs. Emily Delahunty, an eccentric novelist and borderline alcoholic who opens her Italian villa to an unlikely group of characters who, like her, survived a shocking terrorist attack during a recent train journey.

Cooper plays Tom Riversmith, the uptight American professor who arrives at Emily's villa to take custody of his traumatized niece (Emily Clarke), who has been orphaned in the attack. Emily and Tom mix like olive oil and ice water in their very dissimilar perspectives on life.

"There were some aspects of the Riversmith character that I was concerned about," Cooper acknowledges. "The main thing was that I just hoped not to play a two-dimensional stuffy professor type, although I was pretty limited as far as my options, because this character was pretty uptight. Thank goodness Maggie's character was terribly invasive, so I think it worked pretty well. It was a challenge, yes, but I think

I wound up enjoying playing Riversmith as much as the Laroche character."

Indeed, Cooper walks a fine line as he embodies this chilly soul who remains almost completely oblivious to the natural beauty all around him (he much prefers to squint at the local insect life, a very funny visual reflection of the character's misplaced priorities.)

Filming on location in the lush countryside between Florence and Siena was a huge help in realizing his character, Cooper notes.

"I remember specifically we spent several days in Siena, a smaller city than Florence," Cooper says. "It was one of my favorite places that we worked in. Delahunty takes me on this wild route through these narrow streets where we go to one of her local haunts for a drink."

"I was constantly aware, as myself, of the ancient history and stunned by the beauty, but the character was quite unaware of his surroundings."

Days off in the filming schedule left Cooper free to explore Florence art galleries or any of the region's restaurants with his wife and son. "It was hardly, hardly a job," he laughs.

And there was, of course, the professional high of working with an actress considered to be one of the world's best, a prospect Cooper admits made him nervous at first.

"Maggie Smith is extraordinary," he says. "I am a person of few words, and I was even more dumbstruck, even intimidated initially, to be working with such a talent. I did a retrospective before I went to Italy, and saw 'The Lonely Passion of Judith Hearne' and was so incredibly touched by her work that I actually got physically sick. And I saw 'The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie' and realized I had some serious work ahead of me."

"But she was an absolute delight, such a big part of our theater and film history. I felt blessed. We had several dinners in the evening and she would hold court around the table. She likes her liquor and she holds it very well, but she just opens up and is so delightful."

The 51-year-old actor's recent Academy Award caps a distinguished career that began in 1987 with John Sayles' critically acclaimed but little-seen miniseries "Matewan." His performances since then have included such high-profile projects as "The Patriot" and the Oscar-winning "American Beauty," but Cooper says he hopes his startling "Adaptation" performance and subsequent Oscar exposure will lift him from the rank of "an actor's actor."

"I've been thinking about this, about how to put it into words," he says, obviously treading with care. "People on the street who stop me are wonderful, but the whole idea of public fame is something I can't do anything with, although I don't mean that to sound hard or indifferent."

"My greatest concern after winning the Academy Award is to hope that more people in the business, in the studios, in independent film, get a recognition of what I hope is my versatility and put the flame to the face. I am one of those actors who is 'What's His Name' or 'That Guy,' and I am being assured that people in the industry are aware of my work, but I still sort of question that."

His next project, the highly anticipated summer blockbuster "Seabiscuit" with Academy Award winner Chris Cooper ("Adaptation") stars as a repressed American professor who clashes with an eccentric novelist in "My House in Umbria," premiering Sunday on HBO.

Tobey Maguire, seems likely to enhance even further his newfound celebrity, but meanwhile Cooper can savor memories of his time in the Oscar spotlight, an occasion for which he says he tried to prepare himself in advance.

"I had heard people say that 'It went by in a flash. I didn't know what I was saying or doing up there,'" he says. "I wanted to just make sure that didn't happen with me, so before the cameras were rolling and everyone was milling about in the auditorium, I took a moment to take in the space and look up at those three-tiered balconies. I didn't want to be too intimidated by the whole atmosphere if I was lucky enough to win, with all these stars around."

"I guess it worked out OK. I wanted to be present, to remember it clearly. And I do."

PBS Memorial Day concert has renewed significance

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Memorial Day often comes with some distance from the last time U.S. soldiers were active in a war. Not this year.

The United States' military campaign in Iraq will be commemorated during the 14th annual National Memorial Day Concert Sunday, May 25 (check local listings), on PBS. Broadcast from the West Lawn of the U.S. Capitol in Washington, D.C., the 90-minute program also observes the anniversaries of the ends of the Korean and Vietnam Wars.

World War II veteran Ossie Davis serves as host for the 10th time; also returning are actors Charles Durning and Joe Mantegna, actor-singer Tom Wopat and conductor Erich Kunzel, who again will lead the National Symphony Orchestra. New to the program: John Glenn, former astronaut and senator; actors Tony Randall, Gena Rowlands, Dylan McDermott and Marion Ross; singers Michael Crawford ("The Phantom of the Opera"), Renee Fleming, Linda Eder and Yolanda Adams; and the country-music group Lonestar.

Mantegna ("The Godfather, Part III") also participated in last year's National Memorial Day Concert, and the experience clearly was emotional for him. After reading words by people directly impacted by the events of Sept. 11, 2001, he rushed into the audience and tearfully embraced the writers. "I've actually maintained contact with some of them," Mantegna reports. "Especially one man who lost both his sons on 9/11, one a fireman and the other a policeman. There's no preparing for (an encounter) like that."

"Our nation's Memorial Day is a collection of a lot of things," Mantegna notes, "tributes, music and celebrations of people who made the ultimate sacrifice, which is the reason we have this day of remembrance. Last year, I stood in front of a 60-foot screen showing what happened at the World Trade Center, an orchestra was playing Mozart's 'Requiem,' and in front of me were these people in the noblest professions of all. All those things coming together was overwhelming to me."

Wopat, who's now on Broadway in a revival of "42nd Street," appreciated being in the 2001 National Memorial Day Concert for two big reasons: He reteamed with his "Dukes of Hazzard" crony John

Schneider and he got to work again with conductor Kunzel. "I've done a number of patriotic events with Erich," Wopat says. "Of course, since 9/11, several of the things we've done together have had this same flavor. I pretty much have an idea of what the material will be."

Wopat is ready for the emotion of this year's event. "A situation like the one we've been in lately heightens the whole experience," he says. "It's quite an experience to do patriotic shows, anyway. I've always had a warm spot in my heart for them, but now, it's so timely that you walk a bit of a fine line. You don't want to be too obvious, but you still want the right level of commitment. The audience gets very involved, so it's pretty intense."

Mantegna (who will star in CBS' fall series "Joan of Arcadia") reasons, "Whatever your political beliefs or your leanings toward whether war is justified or not, this program transcends that. The point is that things happen and lives are lost, and do we learn something from it? Obviously, the best Memorial Day concert would be none at all. Until then, we should use an event like this to not forget the price people have paid for the freedoms we think are inalienable rights."

First Lt. Colby Wyatt of the Army National Guard receives a goodbye kiss from daughter Sydney as he departs for duty in the Middle East. His efforts, and those of other servicemen in past and present military campaigns, will be commemorated Sunday in PBS' 14th annual telecast of the National Memorial Day Concert from Washington, D.C. (check local listings).

Castroneves picture-perfect, says ABC's Goodyear

By George Dickie

Winning the Indianapolis 500 takes perfection.

Perfection in the performance of the driver; perfection in the efficiency of the crew; and perfection in the condition of the vehicle at the end of the race.

That is what Helio Castroneves has had going for him the past two years as defending champion, says Scott Goodyear, who will provide analysis when ABC broadcasts the 87th running of the world's most prestigious auto race live from the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on Sunday, May 25.

"What is he doing right?" asks Goodyear. "The team is doing everything right, and Helio is doing everything right. And that is, he's lasting the race because, obviously, to finish first he must first finish. He's being smart about it. He's not damaging his equipment, all those things seem simple. But if you bump a wheel with another driver ... or you bend a wing, all those small, little things take away from having a perfect race car at the end of the event."

"And what's Helio had that's made him win those last couple of times? He has been ready; the team has been ready; they've been prepared; and he has actually had a perfect race car at the end of the day, that he can actually respond to any challenges that he gets."

And according to Goodyear, a former Indy Racing League driver who competed in this race 11 times, those challenges are many.

Take, for instance, turn one at the Speedway's four-turn, 2 1/2-mile oval track. "It's like driving into a tunnel," Goodyear says, "simply from the fact that you have all the suites and grandstands on both sides of you going into the turn. And the turns are all blind anyway."

"There is a tunnel that allows truck traffic and things like that, right in turn one. So if it's a windy day, you turn in and you get this blast of wind because that's the only section that's not sheltered by the grandstands. And everybody feels that it makes turn one difficult if it's a windy day."

Wind is also a factor coming off turn two and into the backstretch. "You look down this long straightaway ... there's not that many structures around it. There's a golf course on both sides, and then the mounds for all the people to sit on, built like an amphitheater on the inside of the racetrack. ... Sometimes you can hit a head wind or a side wind and it can literally pick the car up and move it over two car widths. You know, you could be 20 feet over in a minute, so you have to contend with that."

Then, of course, there's congestion. "There also could be traffic in front of you, and then also traffic behind you. So you might have to pass the cars in front of you. The guys behind you are trying to pass you. But take all this into account, the one thing people always fail to realize is that we're dealing with turbulence, the same type of turbulent air that comes off the jet stream of a plane taking off; the same type of turbulence that you and I feel going behind a tractor-trailer at 55 miles an hour on the highway. All these sorts of things are coming into play on something that's going that fast, that is very susceptible to aerodynamic changes, and it just becomes a real hard thing to do for one lap or maybe four laps for qualifying for the Indy 500 or especially over 200 laps."

Goodyear likens driving a race car to flying a plane, except with less margin for error. "You're going at speeds faster than an airplane actually goes to take off or land anyway. ... You're dealing with going, as I always tell people, the length of a football field in about 8/10 of a second. And then you have to make your approach to the turn, which is just as important or maybe even more important than approach in landing an airplane. Because when you're landing an airplane, you can really be off by five or 10 feet or land another 20 feet down the runway or whatever it is. We don't have that luxury in racing cars because you need to be within six inches on your turning point every time because you're entering the turn at over 230 miles per hour, and you have to be precise on the way in and precise all the way through, and then also precise on the exit, or you're going to hit the wall."

"NASCAR Winston Cup Coca-Cola 600" Sunday, May 25 (Fox, 5 p.m. ET): Following the Indy 500, a long day for race fans concludes with the longest oval track race in existence, the Coca-Cola 600 from Lowe's Motor Speedway in Concord, N.C. As Jimmie Johnson learned last year, sometimes the best car doesn't always matter. Johnson led more than half of the 400 laps, but a pit mistake paved the way for Mark Martin winning his first career 600 race. Matt Kenseth, whose been atop the points leaderboard almost all season, finished second.

"French Open Tennis" Monday, May 26 (ESPN2, 8 a.m. ET): Her recent Grand Slam resume makes it tempting to simply pencil Serena Williams in the final of the French Open, which begins today. But even the women's No. 1 player has to grunt her way through two weeks of matches before defending her crown. She beat sister Venus last year, then repeated the same feat in the next three Slam finals. Andre Agassi hasn't won four straight Slams, but he won the Australian Open this year and was again No. 1 in the world.

"Boston Red Sox at New York Yankees" Monday, May 26 (ESPN, 1 p.m. ET): No team knows better than the Boston Red Sox that the road to American League East supremacy travels through the Bronx, home of the New York Yankees. In the start of a three-game series, the Sox look to make inroads in their challenge for the Yankees' throne. Alfonso Soriano is one reason why New York could be headed to a sixth-straight division crown. Soriano began the season with MVP-like numbers, earning him AL Player of the Month honors for April.

Movie: The Gathering Storm

First performed on television by Richard Burton in the 1970s, this drama about Sir Winston Churchill's efforts to sound an advance warning about World War II gets another telling. Albert Finney now plays the British leader, who put his marriage and career at risk in an early bid to expose the Nazis' quest for global power. Vanessa Redgrave co-stars as Churchill's wife in a cast that also includes Oscar winner Jim Broadbent ("Iris") and Tom Wilkinson.

Movie: Short Circuit

It's a toss-up as to who has the funnier lines in this delightful 1986 comedy: adorable, almost-human robot Number 5 or language-mangling Ben (Fisher Stevens, "Early Edition"). The robot is an experimental model, which becomes more than the sum of its parts when a bolt of lightning brings it to life. Steve Guttenberg plays the scientist who designed the robot and has to get it back before assorted disasters ensue. Ally Sheedy also stars.

TV Trivia

Tony Randall ("National Memorial Day Concert") got his break on radio as Reggie in the long-running series "I Love a Mystery" in the 1940s.

Lou Reed ("Night of Too Many Stars") wrote about his experience in a mental institution as a teen in the song "Kill Your Sons."

Blind musician Ray Charles ("Willie Nelson and Friends: Live and Kickin'") actually drove solo in a desert for a car commercial.

As Stacy Keach ("Stupid Behavior Caught on Tape") was being born, his house caught fire from a lightning bolt.

Julia Roberts ("100 Most Irresistible Women") loved animals so much as a child that she wanted to become a veterinarian.

NASCAR Racing

Following the Indy 500, a long day for race fans concludes with the longest oval track race in existence, the Coca-Cola 600 from Lowe's Motor Speedway in Concord, N.C. As Jimmie Johnson learned last year, sometimes the best car doesn't always matter. Johnson led more than half of the 400 laps, but a pit mistake paved the way for Mark Martin winning his first career 600 race. Matt Kenseth, whose been atop the points leaderboard almost all season, finished second.

Movie: The Hudsucker Proxy

Filmmakers Joel and Ethan Coen ("Fargo") worked in a kinder, gentler mode in this underappreciated 1994 comedy about a 1950s bumpkin who comes to the big city and becomes an unwitting pawn in a plan to destroy a corporation. The set designs are breathtaking. The fun cast

Hearst has a handle on bad-boy attitude

By Candace Havens
© Zap2it

In case the memo didn't come in, Ric Lansing (Rick Hearst) on "General Hospital" is not a rapist. He slipped into bed with Carly Corinthos (Tamara Braun), but nothing happened.

It didn't help his reputation that he went on to blackmail Carly and make her think they did have sex - and Ric has been paying the price.

"He's a manipulator, he's psychotic, but he wouldn't go so far as to rape a woman," says Hearst of his wayward character. "The funny thing is that a lot of viewers knew in the beginning that Ric didn't do it, but they thought, well, maybe they missed something. He perpetuated the lie so well that we all believed it was true."

So what is it that drives Ric to take insane risks with his life and the lives of those around him?

"The boy is so freaking damaged," Hearst says, "and he makes decisions based on obsession and vengeance. He needs answers to questions about where he comes from. He wants to know why he wasn't loved enough to keep. Children who come from an environment where their parents gave them up wonder where it is they fit into the world. He has to fight for every inch he gets."

Playing the bad boy comes easily to Hearst, who, for the record, is a nice guy. Through the years, he's portrayed flawed characters in soaps such as "Days of Our Lives" and "Guiding Light."

"The great thing is that each of these bad boys has his own little spin on the world," Hearst says. "I feel like I'm very lucky to get such complex characters. The trick is to play these guys as if you understand their thought processes, and then make it believable for the audience."

"One thing I love about this show ('GH') is they aren't afraid to give their characters shades of gray. It's not always clear who the good guys and bad guys are. Sometimes, you are just rooting for the best of the bad guys."

"You've got Sonny and Jason (Maurice Benard, Steve Burton) standing over Faith (Cynthia Preston), ready to put a bullet in her head. But who is the hero here? It's all about who's the hero in the bad guy's world."

Tuesday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 4-CBS

JAG

A Navy lieutenant (guest star Steve Monroe) tricks Mac (Catherine Bell) into helping him expose flaws in a military targeting device in "Standards of Conduct." After first believing she's merely helping him attain an honorable discharge, she tries to regain ground after realizing she's been duped. A lawyer (guest star Gavin MacLeod, "The Love Boat") targets Harm (David James Elliott) after a minor traffic mishap.

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Gillmore Girls

Rory's (Alexis Bledel) Harvard application form has arrived, and she and Lorelai (Lauren Graham) don't want to make any missteps. In "Application Anxiety," they have dinner with a university alumnus to get tips on what they should and shouldn't do. Lane (Keiko Agena) takes a personal interest in a would-be member of the rock group, and Luke (Scott Patterson) starts a new business venture.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

Dog Eat Dog

Six contestants vie to be the last person standing as this game show, featuring former "Baywatch" actress Brooke Burns as host, starts its second season. The players get to know one another by spending a day together, then all bets are off the next day as they compete for a potential $25,000 prize. The participants endure various mental and physical tests, with each person trying to get the others voted out of the competition.

the author of the best seller "Into Thin Air" — which was turned into a TV movie — leads an expedition up the Vinson Massif in Antarctica in "Mountain of Ice." The 1912 competition between Capt. Robert F. Scott and Roald Amundsen to be the first to reach the South Pole is detailed as well.

7 p.m. on ESPN

Stanley Cup Playoffs

The emotion of the Stanley Cup Playoffs is like few other sporting events, and now that the Finals are here, the fever pitch of that emotion will help carry one team to hockey's holy grail. If this spring's tournament is any harbinger, then keep your favorite caffeinated beverage handy — plenty of contests thus far have advanced into sudden-death overtime, with some winners not determined until the wee morning hours.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

According to Jim

An acquaintance (guest star Kevin Sorbo, "Andromeda") gives Jim (Jim Belushi) a lucrative contracting assignment, then makes a move on Cheryl (Courtney Thorne-Smith) in "The Pass." Jim is left to debate whether to overlook the inappropriate advances toward his wife.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Smallville

Clark (Tom Welling) again comes to the rescue of a telepathically gifted young friend (guest star Ryan Kelley) in "Ryan." The boy's powers become known to a doctor who wants to harness them for sinister purposes. Lana (Kristin Kreuk) starts considering ways she can remain in Smallville when Nell (Sarah-Jane Redmond) decides to move to Metropolis.

8 p.m. on 19-PBS

Warrior Challenge

"Gladiators," the final episode of the unscripted four-part miniseries, puts contemporary Royal Marines through many of the same paces that Russell Crowe had to endure for his Oscar-winning role in "Gladiator." The modern warriors learn the uses of Roman instruments of combat before engaging in a traditional battle before a lively, loudly cheering audience.

8 p.m. on TNN

Movie: The Usual Suspects

An outstanding ensemble cast (including best supporting actor Oscar winner Kevin Spacey) breathes life into this 1995 suspense drama about five criminals wrongfully implicated in a crime. In Christopher McQuarrie's nuanced screenplay, sinister ulterior motives and plenty of plot twists create an intense pace. You won't be left wondering who the mysterious Keyser Soze is; Gabriel Byrne and Benicio Del Toro also star.

9 p.m. on 26-ABC

NYPD Blue

The detectives seek those responsible for the murder of a teenager, slain so his bicycle could be stolen, in "Death by Cycle." The troubles of McDowell's (Charlotte Ross) pregnant sister (Katherine Lanasa) continue as her abusive husband (Nicholas Lea) is released from prison, then again displays his violent tendencies toward his wife.

Kitty (Debra Jo Rupp) goes through a life crisis in "Hot Dog." While she experiences menopause, Red (Kurtwood Smith) tries to help her by getting her a dog. Eric (Topher Grace) also is on the verge of a life-altering experience: He gets an engagement ring for Donna (Laura Prepon), only to develop second thoughts about popping the big question. Another episode immediately follows.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC Fame

First it was a movie about the High School for the Performing Arts in New York, then it was a weekly drama series. Now, "Fame" is transformed into a reality show with a two-hour premiere episode. Actress-choreographer Debbie Allen, who starred in both previous incarnations, returns to conduct a search for young performers with drive and talent. Viewers get to determine who stays in the competition.

7 p.m. on 19-PBS

Berga: Soldiers of Another War

The last documentary completed by esteemed filmmaker Charles Guggenheim ("The Johnstown Flood") before his death last fall, this remembrance of Holocaust atrocities suffered by American POWs marks the only time Guggenheim narrated one of his projects. Some of the soldiers captured and tortured by Nazis were members of the 106th Infantry Division, to which Guggenheim also belonged — making him determined to tell his peers' story.

The Bernie Mac Show

Bernie (Bernie Mac) quickly comes to regret being the grown-up in charge of a carpool in "Carfool." Barely able to keep his cool around the children he's minding at home, he comes close to losing his grip with other people's kids — and their parents, especially in the case of one man whose son harasses Jordan (Jeremy Suarez).

Movie: Foxfire

John Denver holds his own opposite husband-and-wife acting legends Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy in this 1987 TV version of the stage play. Denver plays the son of Tandy's character, who frequently visits with her deceased husband's ghost. Cronyn, who plays the late husband, collaborated on the script with Susan Cooper, who became his wife after Tandy's death. Tandy won an Emmy here after earning a Tony for the Broadway production.

8:30 p.m. on 19-PBS

American Masters

One of the most renowned war photographers in the history of such coverage is recalled in the new episode "Robert Capa: In Love and War," narrated by "ER" co-star Goran Visnjic. Particularly during World War

II, Capa captured the horrors of military conflict in his work, which also reflected his feelings of helplessness in being unable to prevent them.

Those interviewed include actress Isabella Rossellini and screenwriter Peter Viertel.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC Law & Order

The body of one of the two people in charge of a private gambling operation is found in the trunk of an expensive car in "Chosen." Briscoe and Green (Jerry Orbach, Jesse L. Martin) immediately suspect the victim's partner. As McCoy and Southerlyn (Sam Waterston, Elisabeth Rohm) prosecute the case, they're thwarted by a defense attorney with a tricky strategy.

Movie: Alien Resurrection

Given the ending of "Alien 3," it seems unlikely that Sigourney Weaver would — or could — return again as astronaut Ellen Ripley. Nevertheless, this 1997 entry in the science-fiction series made it possible. Weaver plays an alien clone of Ripley who joins yet another spaceship crew. Winona Ryder and Ron Perlman also are on board.

The script is by "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" mentor Joss Whedon.

The Amazing Race 4

The next race around the world begins for 12 two-person teams as the reality series returns. Host Phil Keoghan starts the competitors on their way in this 90-minute premiere; the duo to reach the finish line first will win $1 million. This time, the teams include air-traffic controllers, an engaged couple, two models and two friends who are literal clowns.

Stereotypical characters populate this guilty pleasure, a 1974 crisis-in-the-skies drama "inspired by" the 1970 screen version of Arthur Hailey's best seller "Air-

Movie: Rosemary's Baby

Director Roman Polanski's 1968 thriller, based on the Ira Levin novel, is a genuine hair-raiser. Pregnant young wife Rosemary (Mia Farrow) is targeted by a cult of elderly Satan worshippers after she and her husband (John Cassavetes) move into a New York apartment building. The expert supporting cast includes Ruth Gordon (who won an Oscar for her performance), Maurice Evans, Ralph Bellamy and Patsy Kelly.

Movie: Courage Under Fire

When a female helicopter pilot (Meg Ryan) is posthumously considered for the Medal of Honor, Lt. Col. Nathaniel Serling (Denzel Washington) is assigned to investigate. His findings about events leading to her death during the Gulf War will determine if the first woman to be nominated for the honor is worthy of the award. The 1996 drama also stars Lou Diamond Phillips, Matt Damon and

Reba

Though one of her greatest joys is poking fun at Barbra Jean (Melissa Peterman), Reba (Reba McEntire) decides to cool it for Kyra's (Scarlett Pomers) sake in "It's Jake's Party, Cry If You Want To." That move lasts only so long, since Barbra Jean's unsavory remarks at a party make Reba itch to retaliate. Brock (Christopher Rich) adds to the surprises when he arrives at the event.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order: Special Victims Unit

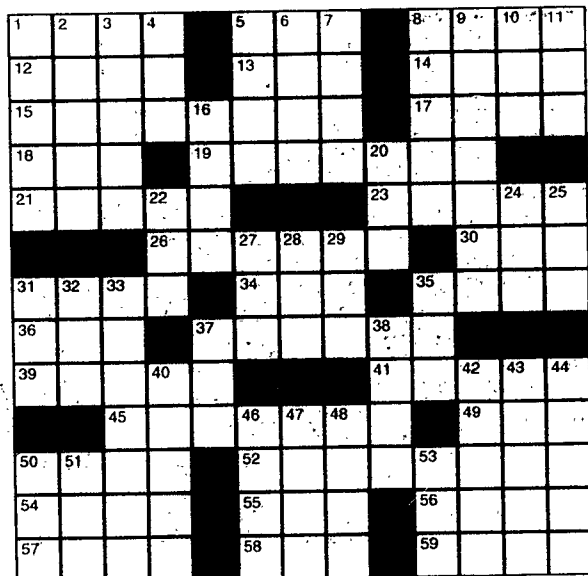

The murder of a baby, found inside a cooler in the East River, stuns Benson and Stabler (Mariska Hargitay, Christopher Meloni) in "Mercy." They're even more shocked to discover the infant may have been killed to prevent its development of a fatal genetic condition. Cabot (Stephanie March) consults a pediatrician (guest star Judd Hirsch) in deciding how to conduct the resulting prosecution.

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"THE PIANIST": One of the biggest stories of the latest Academy Awards, Roman Polanski's superb, intensely moving drama took Oscars for best director, actor (Adrien Brody) and adapted screenplay (Ronald Harwood). Holocaust survivor Polanski folds some of his own experiences into the true story of Wladyslaw Spillman, a Polish-Jewish musician who ended up the only member of his family to survive the Nazis' incursion into the Warsaw ghetto. * (R: AS, P, V)

"THE RECRUIT": A CIA novice (Colin Farrell) graduates to the big leagues fast in director Roger Donaldson's involving, well-paced drama. The trainee is selected by a veteran agent (a typically commanding Al Pacino) to train at warp speed, then determine which of his peers is a mole. Bridget Moynahan ("The Sum of All Fears") plays a fellow agent who Farrell's character falls for - and ultimately develops doubts about. Gabriel Macht co-stars.  (PG-13: AS, P, V)

"A GUY THING": That Julia Stiles, Jason Lee and Selma Blair make an appealing trio is the saving grace of this predictable romantic comedy. Lee plays a man who overindulges at his bachelor party, leading him to awaken the following morning next to a beautiful free spirit (Julia Stiles). As if he doesn't feel guilty enough, she turns out to be the cousin of his fiancée (Selma Blair). James Brolin co-stars.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"NATIONAL SECURITY": Martin Lawrence may not be the first person you want battling a terrorist plot, but he's on the front lines anyway in this loud, relatively unfunny action-comedy. He and Steve Zahn ("Joy Ride") star as would-be police officers who become security guards instead. They get the chance to show their stuff when they cross paths with a smuggler (Eric Roberts) and his minions, then confiscate some items meant to be fenced.  (PG-13: AS, P, V)

"TALK TO HER": Renowned Spanish filmmaker Pedro Almodóvar earned an Oscar for his original screenplay for this intriguing comedy-drama. Molly is priceless as 'Third Watch' cop Faith Yokas

It would be a better world if more people were like NYPD officer Faith Yokas on NBC's Monday-night drama "Third Watch," which also airs Monday through Saturday on A&E Network.

Brave, streetwise and loving, she has one of the world's hardest jobs, and she does it with compassion and grace. Tough enough to wrestle doped-up perpetrators, she also is gentle enough to embrace her children. In many ways, Yokas is the woman many strive to be, juggling the pressures of a job, the rhythms of a marriage and the challenges of motherhood. And she emanates a warmth that makes people want to be her friend.

Not all of these qualities can be found on the pages of a script, no matter how well-written. Faith is three-dimensional because of Molly Price, the actress who has portrayed her for the past four seasons.

"She has gone through an evolution," Price says from the Manhattan apartment she shares with her husband, a cocker spaniel and a pit bull. "Originally, I was a comic sideman, straight man to Bosco (her hotheaded former partner). I was a cookie-cutout ubercop. Now, I have become a woman who does the police work as opposed to just (being) a cop. I get to be funny and sad and silly and strong and feminine and maternal."

In the season finale that aired last month, three shots were fired at show's end. When this interview took place in early May, Price had no idea as to the fate of her character, or even of the show. NBC has yet to announce whether it will be renewed.

"Third Watch" has grown from a show with an interesting premise - focusing on the work of firefighters, cops and paramedics during the third shift in New York - to a gut-wrenching drama, particularly in the wake of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. The show explores, as it is uniquely equipped to do, the lives of those who wore NYC rescue uniforms that day.

For Price, the story is personal. She spent that sunny Tuesday, the day she was supposed to be shopping for a wedding gown, watching the horror on television and waiting for her then-fiance, New York firefighter Derek Kelly, to call. They married a month later, as planned, offering friends a wedding after a month of funerals.

Now expecting their first child in the fall, Price is "over the moon" and unabashedly in love with the firefighter from Queens whom she met on the set, where he is an extra.

"When he talks Queens stuff, it drives me crazy," she says. "I love that 'Charlie so and so took a heart attack.' Not 'had a heart attack,' 'took one.' Only in Queens. I just love that whole sort of 'Goodfellas' (ambience), where there's always a pot of coffee on the stove and an Entenmann's cake on the counter ... There's no pretense."

Growing up as the third of five children in North Plainfield, N.J., Price says that she knew "from birth" that she wanted to act. Her first role was as a soldier in a fifth-grade play, and from that point she was hooked. She saw lots of plays in New York, and wound up studying theater at Rutgers University, where Calista Flockhart was a classmate.

Though she has worked in movies and television in Los Angeles, Price prefers New York. "I am in love with New York," she says. "I am very proud to live here. It's a little badge of honor."

"When you are a New York actor, your agenda is a little different than if you are a California actor," she says. "New York actors really want to act, and California actors tend to want to be stars, and being a star makes you a lot more fidgety. New York actors are not so interested in that. We eat and drink and fight and are out in the city. In L.A., you are very isolated and you tend to spend a lot of time in the mirror."

"Now that she is pregnant, Price is looking forward to hiatus, which she plans to spend "sleeping and eating and reading books. And I am going to plant a garden in my Block Island (R.I.) house and make love to my husband and just rest and chill and recharge my battery."

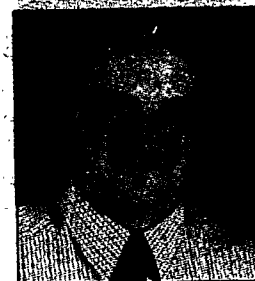

She and her sisters have a sandwich shop on Block Island, Three Sisters. A specialty is the Twisted Sister, made of turkey, cheddar, avocado and bacon. This summer, however, Price says she won't work the counter much.

"I have other interests," she says. "Eventually, I would love to produce. I would love to do women's material. The place I feel most fulfilled is when they shout 'Action!' You get to be everything you can't be in real life. You are able to be so clear about it when you are acting. In real life, there is no script. You don't know what the next scene will be. I have a very diverse personality and very diverse interests. Acting relaxes me and makes me focused and I can leave the rest of the world behind."

Molly Price plays NYPD officer Faith Yokas on NBC's Monday drama "Third Watch," which also airs Monday through Saturday on A&E Network.
